Rhee Believed Won Over To Truce Terms

Korean Armistice Near, UN Officials Indicate In Seoul

SEOUL (AP)—President Eisenhower's truce emissary said today he has wound up his secret conferences with President Syngman Rhee and U. S. sources indicated Rhee had been won over to an armistice. A joint communique will be issued at 8 p. m. EST today.

Robertson told a news conference he was leaving for home because "I feel my work is done." He said substantial progress had been made toward winning Rhee over to an armistice in more than two weeks of talks, but refused to give any details.

The armistice negotiations at Panmunjom were, as usual, cloaked in secrecy. The delegates met for 27 minutes in the morning, then returned to the conference but for a 23-minute afternoon session.

They will meet again at 9 p. m. EST Saturday.

There were mounting signs that an armistice was near.

These new developments in the Korean truce came a few hours after Allied and Communist negotiators met twice in Panmunjom to discuss final details of an armistice.

RHEE TOLD newsmen Saturday he and Robertson had reached "a friendly understanding" on problems relating to a truce.

And while Robertson refused to comment on his talks with the North Korean statesman, he appeared well satisfied with his mission as he talked with newsmen after a reception in his honor at the U. S. Embassy in Seoul.

Robertson said he would leave for Tokyo Sunday morning and would confer Monday and Tuesday with Gen. Mark Clark, the UN commander, and Japanese officials. He said he would leave for (Continued on Page Two)

Sailor Dies In Chair For Love Slaying

COLUMBUS (AP)—A 29-year-old sailor died in Ohio Penitentiary's electric chair Friday night for killing a buddy's wife.

Robert H. Gemmell died repeating prayers recited by two Catholic chaplains. He was converted to the Catholic religion in the penitentiary and baptized Friday.

Gemmell, father of four, was convicted of the murder last July 31 of Mrs. Laura Grimshaw, 25, wife of one of Gemmell's friends at Port Columbus Naval Base. The prosecution claimed Gemmell killed her because she threatened to tell of their love affair.

Less than two hours before the execution Gov. Frank J. Lausche announced he would not intervene a second time. Lausche had granted Gemmell a stay of execution, originally set for April 1.

Sheriff Ralph J. Paul said Gemmell told him Monday that when he was convinced he would be executed, he'd confess to another, earlier, slaying.

But to the end, he refused to discuss the matter with officials. It was reported in San Diego, Calif., Gemmell might be implicated in the 1947 slaying of a Canadian woman who was vacationing in California. That slaying has never been solved.

Gemmell's wife, Lona, whom he married in 1946, pleaded with Lausche Thursday to save her husband's life. Their oldest child is four years old, and the youngest was born after Gemmell entered the penitentiary last December.

Judge Pleased To Oblige Man

HALIFAX, Nova Scotia (AP)—Charles Hoffman says if Halifax County had a better jail he would not have broken out of it.

"It's a disgrace," he told Police Court Magistrate R. J. Flinn Friday. "I wouldn't be in some of my present troubles if they had a good jail. I want to get out of that place as soon as possible."

Flinn obliged. He sent Hoffman to Dorchester Penitentiary for three years.

WASHINGTON (AP)—The Agriculture Department has forecast this year's corn crop at 3,336,501,000 bushels and the wheat crop at 1,174,708,000 bushels.

This was the first estimate of the year for corn. It compares with last year's crop of 3,306,735,000 bushels and the 10-year (1942-51) average of 3,036,735,000.

Officials have said a crop of more than 3,350,000,000 bushels this year might require use of production controls next year to keep surpluses from getting larger.

The wheat estimate is 42,208,000 bushels more than the 1,132,500,000 bushel forecast of a month ago. It compares with last year's crop of 1,291,447,000 and the 10-year average of 1,088,548,000.

Secretary Benson has invoked marketing quotas on next year's wheat crop to prevent accumulation of top-heavy surpluses.

THE WINTER wheat crop was put at 821,372,000 bushels, which was 51,488,000 bushels more than last month's forecast of 769,884,000. It compares with last year's crop of 1,052,801,000 and with the 10-year average of 797,237,000.

The spring wheat crop was estimated at 353,336,000 bushels, which was 9,280,000 bushels less than last month's forecast of 362,616,000. It compares with last year's crop of 238,646,000 and the 10-year average of 291,311,000.

Durum wheat was put at 28,701,000 bushels in the first estimate of the year for this class. It compares with 21,363,000 last year and 37,360,000 for the 10-year average.

Spring wheat other than durum was reported at 324,635,000 bushels in the first estimate for this class of the year. It compares with 217,283,000 last year and a 10-year average of 253,952,000.

The rye crop was estimated at 17,422,000 bushels compared with 17,087,000 a month ago, last year's crop of 15,910,000 and the 10-year average of 25,837,000.

The acreage for harvest, the average yield per acre and production, respectively, of important crops for Ohio:

Winter wheat, 2,339,000; 27 and 63,153,000; corn, 3,531,000; 52 and 183,612,000; oats, 1,154,000; 40 and 4,616,000.

Other guards rescued them by placing a ladder against the hospital walls and bringing them down. The ill convicts were left inside.

The convicts are objecting to his stern discipline, Gladden said. Convict demands also include: Improvement in laundry service, food and clothing.

Inspection of the prison by the press and health authorities. Changes in the practice of placing unruly prisoners in isolation and segregation.

Gas Storage Bill Hits New Snag

COLUMBUS (AP)—The Ohio House Friday approved (and at the same time possibly killed with an amendment) a Senate-passed measure intended to give gas companies authority to appropriate land for underground gas storage.

Utility officials and others asserted the amendment proposed by Rep. David J. Lewis (R-Perry) may not only doom acquisition of future fields, but wreck gas firms' present storage program. The amendment prohibits gas storage within 5,000 feet of an underground coal mine or an "unmined coal seam which is mineable by underground efforts."

OU Ex-Dean Dies

COLUMBUS (AP)—Miss Willanna M. Riggs, former dean of Boyd Hall at Ohio University, died here Friday. Miss Riggs retired in 1939 after 35 years in Athens.

Big 3 Ministers See Red Change

Beria Ouster May Bring Return To Rough, Tough Soviet Policies

WASHINGTON (AP)—The Big Three Western foreign ministers look to reports from their embassies in Moscow today to throw fresh light on the dramatic Beria purge before they try finally to assess its importance.

Under summons from Secretary of State Dulles, U. S. Ambassador Charles E. Bohlen was flying home to report.

Bohlen had just arrived in Paris from Moscow for a vacation. The State Department said he had foreseen and reported a week ago the probabilities for the downfall of Lavrenty P. Beria as Russia's No. 2 man and rival for power of Premier Georgi Malenkov.

In their initial discussions, Dulles, Foreign Secretary Salisbury of Britain and French Minister Bidault were reported to have agreed Friday that the affair might mean a return by Moscow to a tougher policy toward the West and harsher rule for the captive lands of Eastern Europe.

THE FOREIGN ministers discussed German problems Friday, specifically unification and the proposed role of Germany in Western defense. The conversations also touched on the postponed Bermuda conference and suggestions for top level meetings with Malenkov.

Diplomatic informants gave this account of the opening meeting:

Most of the time was spent in discussing the Beria affair and Russian relations. Three broad conclusions stood out in the exchange of views:

1. Weaknesses which have recently shown up in the Soviet system, such as the uprising in East Germany and the power struggle in Moscow, tend to justify the foreign policy of the West in dealings with Russia.

2. There is no reason so far seen to change the Western policies of building strength against Soviet power.

3. Toward the satellite countries the Western Powers should pursue a middle of the road course aimed at keeping alive the hope of freedom but avoiding moves which could prompt suicidal revolt.

All three ministers reported they were not surprised at Beria's fate and agreed that Malenkov, with his power secure, might take a firmer line toward the outside world. Beria had been identified by some experts with a "soft" policy.

Further discussions:

EUROPEAN Defense Community—Dulles stated the U. S. view that the treaty under which West Germany would be permitted to rearm in a European army should be speedily ratified. Bidault stressed the difficulties of getting French parliamentary approval.

Big Four meeting of Eisenhower, Malenkov, Prime Minister Churchill and French Premier Laniel—There appeared to be agreement that the important question is one of timing. Dulles indicated the U. S. government does not think this is the time for such a session and looks for no magical solution from it.

Salisbury said his government wants a meeting, but at the proper time, and indicated he would not press for action now.

Dems Refuse To Serve On Probe Panel

WASHINGTON (AP)—Three Democratic senators stood fast today in their refusal to serve on Sen. McCarthy's probe panel.

At the same time, J. B. Matthews, whose ouster as committee staff director is at the heart of the dispute, said he can name 7,000 Protestant clergymen he contends form the biggest single group supporting the Communist apparatus in America.

Matthews also declared he has names of Catholic priests and Jewish rabbis, too.

Chairman McCarthy (R-Wis.) announced he will accept the resignations of all three Democrats—Symington of Missouri, McClellan of Arkansas and Henry Jackson of Washington.

But Sen. Mundt (R-SD), next in line for the chairmanship, said he hoped the Democrats "would reconsider their somewhat impetuous action."

McClellan, Symington and Jackson gave no indication of receding from their stand Friday that McCarthy and his fellow Republican members had put them in "the impossible position of having responsibility without any voice, right or authority."

Their walkout came after the subcommittee, in a strictly party-line vote of 4 to 3, adopted a motion by Mundt which declared: "The chairman of the subcommittee shall have the right to hire and dismiss employees of the subcommittee, and the chairman of the committee shall assign to the minority a member of the staff agreeable to him and to operate under his direction."

Iron Law Lifting

BERLIN (AP)—Soviet Maj. Gen. P. T. Dibrova announced today that martial law imposed on rebellious East Berlin June 17 will be lifted at midnight.

EFFECT OF NITROGEN on oat crop is demonstrated by Ray T. Ehlert, a farmer near California, Mo. The stalks of oats he is holding were planted on the same day and received the same fertilizer treatment, except that those in his left hand received 40 pounds of nitrogen to acre. Those oats averaged 49 bushels an acre, while oats in right hand, untreated with nitrogen, averaged only 25.

School Subsidy Bill Slated For Approval In Legislature

COLUMBUS (AP)—The Ohio 100th General Assembly has started the machinery for a fast but orderly adjournment with House approval of a $231 million school subsidy bill.

It was the last key measure on the legislative docket and Senate approval of House changes is certain.

Wary legislators ended their 27th work week Friday finding

Troops Seek Firebug On West Coast

FRESNO, Calif. (AP)—Armed troops patrolled the downtown streets today as police combed this Central California city of 92,000 for a firebug whose torch plunged the community into a near panic.

Loiterers and casual passersby were ordered out of a 32-block downtown area in the wake of 12 fires which broke out almost simultaneously in major buildings Friday amid a rash of false alarms.

Mayor Gordon Dunn declared a state of emergency and Gov. Earl Warren authorized use of volunteer National Guardsmen. The troops stood guard through the night to prevent looting and further arson at hospitals, schools and other public buildings.

More than 20 firemen overcome by heat or smoke were hospitalized, but there were no other reported injuries. Damage was estimated upwards of $800,000.

To guard against loss of life should the arsonist or arsonists strike again, theaters, dance halls and other amusement centers were shut down under the emergency proclamation.

"There is no doubt these fires were deliberately set," Mayor Dunn declared. Most started in restrooms and closets. Police said several false alarms were turned in at the height of the fire-fighting apparently to draw equipment away from the real blaze.

Lad, 6, Given Naturalization

HAMILTON (AP)—Thomas Helmut Lande, who won't be seven until next month, received his naturalization papers from a Butler County court Friday.

The lad, adopted son of a Hamilton couple, was the youngest alien ever to receive American citizenship papers in the county. He was born in Germany.

Fires Break Out At Firemen Frolic

WARREN (AP)—For two months, the volunteer firemen at nearby Hartford didn't have a single fire at night.

Friday, the firemen gathered for their annual fund-raising festival. Within the first 30 minutes, they were called out twice on fires.

great humor in the fact final adjournment Tuesday is scheduled for the 100th legislative day of the 100th General Assembly.

The school bill, as it came out of the House, represented a compromise designed to heal the city-rural breach which developed late in the session.

The House-approved school subsidy carries an extra $3 a year for each elementary and high school pupil in Ohio's 1,363 school districts and $1.50 more a year for each kindergarten pupil.

BUT WEAK school districts will receive more, depending on their ability to raise money locally.

The Senate, after a rugged battle, had decided to apply all additional school funds granted by this Legislature to needy school districts. It pegged the school subsidy at $231 million. That was $3 million more than the House had planned and $16 million more than Democratic Gov. Frank J. Lausche recommended.

The compromise was to make the difference between the Senate and House figures apply to all the school districts of the state equally. That gave city school districts part of what they wanted.

Sen. C. Stanley Mechem (R-Athens), Senate majority leader, said there is no question that the Senate will accept the compromise.

The Senate has yet to act on a House-approved bill to finance the state's capital improvements in the next two years. The bill, known as the "additions and betterments" measure, gained Senate finance committee approval Friday. The total tops $45 million, some 6½ million above the House figure. The money for the bill comes from the state surplus.

Southwest Gets Ike's Promise

MARILLET, Tex. (AP)—The drought-burned Southwest has the promise of President Eisenhower today that the government "will not dilly-dally" while cattle starve on barren ranges.

While some ranchers were convinced that price supports on cattle were the only way the cattle industry in Texas, Oklahoma, New Mexico, Arkansas and Colorado could survive, the President did not mention supports in his ten-minute appearance before the group. But Texas Governor Allan Shivers said the governors and the President had discussed proposals for price supports more fully than any other point.

Kremlin Urged To Let Yanks Help Germans

$15 Million Surplus Ready For Shipment, President Declares

WASHINGTON (AP)—President Eisenhower's offer of food for rebellious East Germany faced the quarrelsome Kremlin today with a choice between accepting capitalist aid or letting Germans go hungry.

The U. S. proposal Friday to begin immediate delivery of $15 million worth of food to Germany's Soviet-controlled Eastern zone was made directly to Moscow.

That bypassed the East German Communist government, which the U. S. has never recognized, and put the issue squarely up to the Kremlin, which just booted Lavrenty P. Beria from his No. 2 perch as boss of the Soviet.

The dramatic stroke caught the Communists at a time when they were fighting the fires of revolt among Moscow-dominated peoples and stirring up sparks among the top men in the Kremlin.

Their choice lay between accepting help from the Americans they call "decadent capitalists" or rejecting aid whose humanitarian aspects can not escape the restive peoples of the satellite countries.

THERE WAS AN air of suddenness about the President's move, announced while he was conferring in Texas with governors of the drought-stricken Southwest.

White House officials said most of the food would come out of existing surpluses held by the Commodity Credit Corporation under the price support program.

But some of the commodities, like sugar, would have to be purchased outright before shipment abroad, they said.

Foreign Aid Chief Harold Stassen said the offer was made under authority of the Mutual Security Law which permits the President to extend up to $20 million in aid to any one country.

Besides sugar, the commodities would include grain, lard and soy bean oil among others.

Eisenhower acted in response to a letter from Chancellor Adenauer of Western Germany. Both Adenauer's letter, dated July 4, and Eisenhower's response were released by the White House.

Adenauer's letter asked the U. S. to join his country in helping East (Continued on Page Two)

State Holds Driver Permit After Mishap

COLUMBUS (AP)—The state motor vehicle bureau today held the driver's license of Walter Frugate of Portsmouth after failing to get Portsmouth officials to arrest him under the new Ohio Financial Responsibility Law.

R. E. Foley, state motor vehicle registrar, said Frugate, who was involved in an automobile accident in Cuyahoga County March 17, could redeem his license by meeting provisions of the new law.

If city solicitor Lowell Thompson of Portsmouth had issued an affidavit for Frugate as Foley wanted, the Portsmouth motorist would have been the first to be arrested under the law.

Frugate, who formerly lived at Chardon, failed to file a written report on the accident near Willoughby within five days. This is the section of the law Foley wanted Thompson to enforce. But Thompson said the affidavit should be issued in the county where the accident occurred.

Foley dropped plans to arrest Frugate after that but picked up his driver's license Friday.

The state motor vehicle registrar said his bureau was working on several similar cases.

'Loot' Is Buried (Not By Thieves)

WASHINGTON (AP)—Washington police are working on a theft case in which the "loot" was buried, but not by the thieves.

The loot is about 80 coffins which police say were stolen by casket company employees and sold to undertakers. Four men were arrested.

Rhee Believed Won Over To Truce Terms

Washington about Wednesday.

THE SOUTH Korean President indicated earlier that he and Robert had not come to a full agreement.

"I think some more meetings will be held," he told a news conference, "but we have covered all the important points."

"I think a final decision will come from the United States."

South Korean Foreign Minister Pyung Yung Tai said that "the talks we have had here have ended, but there may be other talks."

Robertson paid glowing tribute to Rhee at his news conference.

"Never in my life have I met a more dedicated man than President Rhee," he said. "He is a real patriot. He is single-mindedly for the welfare of Korea."

"And I am certain that his actions in this matter have been well above any personal plane."

"He has dedicated his life to a free and independent Korea and everything he does is aimed at achieving that object. It is an object we must all respect, and I personally have a tremendous admiration for President Rhee."

Chinese Storm Porkchop Hill

SEOUL (U) — Chinese troops stormed up the slopes of embattled Porkchop Hill in broad daylight today and wrested the crest of the western front outpost from American troops.

The Chinese launched the assault at 10:10 a. m. when they sprang from bunkers on the western and northern tips won in five days of bitter fighting for the outpost only 40 miles from Seoul.

In the air, Red night fighters unsuccessfully attacked Allied B-29s bombing a newly-repaired bridge network deep in Northwest Korea which funnels Red supplies into Korea from Manchuria.

Personal Income Up By 7 Pct.

WASHINGTON (U) — Americans' total personal income will run 7 per cent higher this year than last, if the government-reported levels for the first five months hold up.

The Commerce Department Friday reported the May income from employment, farm operations, rents and other sources was at an annual rate of $284 billion, up $1 billion from April. For the first five months the rate was $282 billion.

Lad, 6, Crushed

HAMILTON (U) — Six-year-old William Clarence Morgan was crushed to death Friday under a wheel of a tractor-trailer.

AS REPORTS from Tokyo once more indicate a truce may be near in Korea, Marine Col. James Murray, new chief UN liaison officer, leaves the conference hut at Pannunjom, carrying a letter addressed to UN Commander Gen. Mark Clark. The letter was from the Reds. (International)

Eitel Planning Return Home

Charles H. Eitel, who suffered an eye injury while working in the city sewage plant about two weeks ago, is expected to return home Tuesday.

He permanently lost the sight of his left eye in surgery performed Friday night in Mt. Carmel hospital, Columbus.

Eitel was rushed into the hospital immediately after a piece of steel struck him in the eye as he was trying to repair machinery in the plant.

Eitel's wife and a sister, Mrs. Mary Young of Plymouth, Ind., were among those who waited in the hospital while the 42-year old plant worker underwent final surgery on the eye.

The Eitels, who live at 517 N. Pickaway St., have two children.

Hollywood Sees 'Living Billboard'

HOLLYWOOD (U) — A "living billboard," with girls in bathing suits diving into a 15-foot circular swimming pool, has made its appearance on Sunset Blvd.

The backdrop is a cut-out shaped like a Las Vegas hotel. Red lightning happened by at the opening yesterday and dived in, fully clothed, pulling a couple of the girls in with him. There's a connection, of course. He starts a night-club appearance at the hotel next week.

True Bachelor Happy, Carefree, With A Crowded Social Calendar

By HAL BOYLE

NEW YORK (U) — You know what causes more old maids than anything? Bachelors.

All women are convinced the only good bachelor is a former bachelor. They aren't really sporting about their hunting. They not only hate the ones that get away from them. They resent seeing a bachelor escape from another girl.

A young lady who returned empty-handed from a recent June matrimonial safari complained:

"To get married today a girl practically has to grab a guy while the ink is still wet on his high school diploma. The older men get, the more frightened they seem to be of marriage, and after 30 they seem to think it is illegal or underhanded or something.

"Just what is wrong with bachelors? Are they afraid to grow up?"

Well, in the interest of lovelorn ladies everywhere, I called together all the bachelors I know. A mangier-looking, happier body of men you never saw. I asked them bluntly:

"Fellows, what is wrong with you? Why don't you get married? Are you yellow?"

This made them angry. They all joyously agreed they were cads but all denied they were cowards. They divided into two general classes:

1. Those who wouldn't marry the best woman who ever lived, "not even if she was half-angel and had feathers to prove it."

2. Those who hadn't found "the right girl" and heartily hoped now they never would.

"People have got the wrong idea about bachelors," said one. "They think they are sad, lonely and helpless. But when you see a guy like that he isn't a real bachelor, he's just a prospective husband."

"A true bachelor is happy and carefree. A married man has two bosses—one at home, one in the office. A bachelor has to please only one. And he leads a crowded social life. He is always in demand. Any party is considered dull, even by wives, unless the hostess has a bachelor or two on tap."

Another bachelor broke in: "It isn't true that bachelors hate women. Nobody loves and appreciates them more. A bachelor just refuses to be a watchdog for any one woman."

"Amen, brother!" chorused his fellow scoundrels.

What basic reason did they have for not marrying?

"Wives insist on treating their husbands like small boys," said one. "They want to mother them. If a wife wants to take the place of one of your parents, why doesn't she act like your father? Your father used to leave you alone most of the time."

"That's right," chimed a second.

"A modern wife isn't satisfied just to marry you. She wants to surround you, engulf you, and crawl into your mind, too. If you take up golf, she isn't happy until she can beat you at the game. She isn't a partner, she's a competitor."

When asked under what conditions they themselves would marry, only two of the diehards would even admit the possibility.

"I might be tempted if I could find a woman who could make a martini as well as my bartender," mused one, "but I think I'm safe."

"Let me put it this way," said the other. "My father was a stinker; let's face it. He refused to work. So my mother got a good job, and all his life kept him well-fed, well-clothed, idle, happy, and supplied with enough pocket money to bet on the races."

"But where can you find a sweet, old-fashioned hard-working girl like that today? If I knew a warm-hearted, generous girl with a fine job that would lead in time to a good pension, and if she had a car and a well-furnished apartment I'd marry her."

Then he added hastily: "But the apartment would have to be air-conditioned."

Kremlin Urged To Let Yanks Help Germans

Germany. He said political pressures there were "steadily increasing" while the food supply "has been steadily deteriorating."

Eisenhower's response was an order to Secretary of State Dulles and Stassen to "take steps to see that this food is made available in Germany without delay." He said he had instructed the American charge d'affaires in Moscow to make the offer to Moscow.

"I SINCERELY hope," the President wrote, "that this effort on our part to relieve the plight of the people in East Germany will be welcomed by the Soviet government."

He said he asked the Russians to consider distributing the food through German religious institutions. He invited other free nations to join "in this emergency."

DEATHS AND FUNERALS

JACK MARION

Funeral services were held Thursday in Bowling Green for Jack Marion, 19, son of Mr. and Mrs. Walter Jerald Marion of Bowling Green, formerly of Circleville.

Young Marion died last Sunday in Kansas City, Mo., where he was employed during the Summer on a crew spraying weeds along railroad tracks.

He was born Sept. 28, 1934, in Toledo. He was graduated by Bowling Green High School in June, 1952, and had completed his freshman year in Bowling Green State University.

Surviving him, in addition to his parents, are an older brother, Jerald, who is serving in Germany with the Seventh Army Headquarters, and a younger brother, Robert, at home. He was the grandson of Mrs. Lula B. Marion of Columbus, formerly of Circleville.

WILLIAM STEWARD

William W. Steward, 82, of Amanda, a retired carpenter, died at 6:30 a. m. Saturday in the home of a sister, Mrs. John Waites, in Amanda. He had been ill six months.

Mr. Steward was born Dec. 9, 1870, in Fairfield County, son of Lewis and Mary Baughman Steward. He never married.

Surviving him are three sisters, Miss Mollie Steward of Amanda, Mrs. Clay Hitler of Circleville and Mrs. Waites.

Funeral services will be held at 2 p. m. Monday in Van Cleave Funeral Home, Amanda, with the Rev. George Getter officiating. Burial will be in Dutch Hollow cemetery.

Friends may call in the funeral home after 10 a. m. Sunday.

Eight Selected For Test On Health Ratings

First step in annual selection of the "healthiest" boy and girl in Pickaway County was announced Saturday by the Pickaway County extension service.

Four boys and four girls were named to get physical examinations and thus complete the first stage of the nationwide competition. At the time of their selection, the eight were chosen for their outstanding 4-H Club, church and other activities.

Selection of the two county representatives to enter statewide competition will follow physical examinations by Dr. A. D. Blackburn, Pickaway County health commissioner.

Pickaway County's "healthiest" boy was picked as tops in Ohio the last two years. Charles Brown of Circleville Route 2 won the laurels last year, and Ronald Rivers of Mt. Sterling Route 3 was named in 1951.

THE EIGHT named for physical examinations this year are: Rosemary Wright of Ashville Route 2; Nancy Neff of Mt. Sterling Route 1; Nancy Cromley of Ashville Route 2; Joy Eckle of New Holland.

Fred Carpenter of Orient Route 1; Bill Barthelmas of Circleville Route 2; Junior Winfough of Mt. Sterling Route 3; and Everett Thomas of Circleville Route 3.

Dumping Area Getting City's Attention Again

Dirty handwriting on the wall is pointing thumbs down for Circleville's city dump.

City Health Director C. O. Leist Friday said the "dump problem" is getting close attention again, partly because of what he described as failure to carry out important parts of a temporary improvement program.

When smoke and odors from the dump made it a storm center for public criticism last Summer, it was agreed to establish an interim improvement plan. Even at that time, City Council conceded the municipality would "sooner or later" have to act on some better arrangement, possibly a sanitary fill.

One of the rules set up last Summer, Leist pointed out, called for covering the garbage with soil after it is hauled to the dumping grounds. Work in this respect has become slapstick and inefficient, he said, with the result that a new study is being made of other garbage disposal methods.

A REPRESENTATIVE for a machinery firm illustrated the sanitary landfill method with a movie shown to City Council at its last regular meeting. Leist, long an advocate of the sanitary fill plan, said several of the lawmakers seemed especially impressed.

In general, the sanitary fill plan would call for the refuse to be buried at a certain depth in ditches, a portion of which would be covered over at the end of each day with a specially-equipped tractor. Proponents of the idea claim it "eliminates fly breeding," along with having other advantages.

Leist said the city has been warned about the open dump several times by the state. "Sooner or later they'll drop in here and just tell us to close it," he predicted.

The health director said he has reason to suspect that some of the city's unlicensed garbage collectors "are dumping the stuff long before they get it to the dump—in some spot where they figure it won't be found in a hurry."

He has advocated all local garbage collectors be put under a license requirement.

Reckless Driver, Speeder Fined

A reckless driver and a speeder were fined a total of $65 and costs Friday before the court of Mayor Ed Amey.

Roscoe Moore of Columbus was fined $50 and costs for reckless operation on Route 23 north of Circleville. He was arrested by State Patrolman Ray Hoylman.

Mitchell Wiggins of Circleville was fined $15 and costs for speeding at 50 on E. Main St. He was arrested by Special Officer John Lockard.

Letter To The Editor

The Circleville Herald encourages letters to the editor on pertinent subjects of local interest. However, unsigned letters will be disregarded. Non de plume will be used if requested.

EDITOR, THE HERALD: Last Wednesday evening I overheard my mistress read about the latest doings of Council. Imagine my surprise to hear that one of the members was upset because I "mauled a rabbit and chased a robin."

Here I am only a year old and important enough for the town's lawmakers to stop and discuss me. I am very flattered.

I overheard a human friend say since Council is trying to control the bees, dogs and cats, she hoped they'd find time to pass an ordinance against the chattering sparrows and the dirty starlings that are spoiling the paint on her car. That would be quite a meeting.

I can't apologize for the rabbit and robin incident, because I was using the instinct the Lord gave us cats when the world began.

Ceaseless Answer To Be Theme For Presbyterians

During worship service Sunday in Presbyterian church, the Rev. Donald Mitchell will preach on the subject, "Answer Without Ceasing."

The sermon is based upon the text in St. Paul's letter to the Colossians, Chapter 1, verse 9. Here he speaks of "Prayer without ceasing." Ceaseless prayer implies ceaseless answer. God answers prayer, and He answers at all times, for "He that keepeth Israel neither slumbers nor sleeps."

In the choir, Mrs. Richard Boerner will sing a soprano solo, "I heard the voice of Jesus Say." This was composed by George T. Parsons, father of G. Thomas Parsons who is known to many in Circleville.

The Choir will lead the congregation in the singing of hymns entitled "Christ Is Made The Sure Foundation," "Jesus, These Eyes Have Never Seen" and "All Hail The Power of Jesus' Name."

At the organ, Mrs. Theodore L. Huston will play "Adoration," "On The Lake of Galilee" and "Postlude in F."

At 3 p. m. in First Presbyterian church, Columbus (Ohio and Bryden), the annual coaching conference of stewardship and promotion will be conducted for all concerned about the life and work of the local churches. Dinner will be served at 6 p. m.

Westminster Fellowship National Assembly Delegates Don Davis and Anne Downing, have returned from Park College, Mo., and report a very successful conference. Senior Conference delegates Donna Mitchell and Barbara Schumm will return from Wooster Monday evening. Juanita Hill, who has been a counselor at the Presbyterian junior camp at Lake Piedmont for the last two weeks, has returned home.

Scout Troop 205 meetings are discontinued for the Summer. They will resume on the first Wednesday in September.

Young people of Westminster Fellowship have set July 22 for their fourth annual ice cream social, which promises to be the best ever! It will be held on the lawn of the church beginning at 5 p. m.

Westminster Fellowship young people have again secured the approval of the board of elders of the church to conduct worship services during the Pastor's absence in August.

Children presented for Baptism by their parents last Sunday were Hal Terrence, son of Presbyterian Elder Hal Spencer and Mrs. Spencer; Roger Clark, son of Mr. and Mrs. Peter L. Hyde; Deborah Kay, daughter of George Wayne Butler now in California, having just returned from service in Korea. Mrs. Butler was accompanied by her father, Lawrence Thornton.

Church Briefs

Women's Society of World Service of Calvary EUB church will meet at 6 p. m. Tuesday in Ted Lewis Park. The meeting will begin with a picnic supper and be followed by the business meeting and social program.

Midweek service of Calvary EUB church will be held at 7:30 p. m. Wednesday in the church auditorium. The Rev. James Herbst will show a series of color slides which he took on his visit to the Red Bird Mission station of the Evangelical United Brethren church, which is located in southeastern Kentucky.

Council of administration of Calvary EUB church will meet at 8:30 p. m. Wednesday following the midweek service.

Children's department of Calvary EUB church will have its Sunday school picnic from 3:30 p. m. to 6:30 p. m. Friday in Ted Lewis Park. Children are to bring a sack lunch and meet at the Park at 3:30 p. m. Games will be planned and ice cream will be furnished for the entire group.

Introducing a new policy of meeting in the homes of members, First Evangelical United Brethren church service circles will meet at 8 p. m. Monday. Mary Circle meets with Mrs. Kelly Alderman, 200 E. Main St. for "dollar night;" Rebecca Circle meets with Mrs. Loring Davis, Lancaster Pike; and Ruth Circle meets with Mrs. C. O. Kerns, 148 W. Franklin St.

Members of the First Evangelical United Brethren church Brotherhood will meet at 8 p. m. Tuesday in the service center for the first meeting of the new year with the newly installed officers in charge.

"Covenants and Vows" is the Bible study theme to be led by the Rev. Carl L. Wilson in First Evangelical United Brethren church during the prayer and Bible hour at 7:30 p. m. Wednesday.

Church choir of First Evangelical United Brethren church will meet at 7:45 p. m. Wednesday for rehearsal.

Brenda Brown, Carl Gene Porter and Carolyn Jo Metcalf attended intermediate camp Otterbein in Westerville this last week as representatives from the First Evangelical United Brethren church. Senior young people campers this week are Fred Brown, Tommy Valentine, David Steele, Elliott Hawkes, Nancy Ankrom, Judy Horine and Patty McCain. The Rev. and Mrs. Carl L. Wilson will serve on the camp staff.

The work has grown until there is now a Bible seminary and the Japan Every-Creature Crusade, which is being used of God to reach thousands of homes throughout Japan.

A Pattern of Christian Behavior ILLUSTRATED SUNDAY SCHOOL LESSON

Scripture—Romans 6:1-14; 12.

By Alfred J. Buescher

"I beseech you, therefore, brethren, by the mercies of God, that ye present your bodies a living sacrifice, holy, acceptable to God, which is your reasonable service."

Be "not slothful in business; fervent in spirit; serving the Lord; rejoicing in hope; patient in tribulation, continuing instant in prayer; given to hospitality. Bless them that persecute you."

"Rejoice with them that do rejoice, and weep with them that weep. Be of the same mind one toward another. . . Be not wise in your own conceit. . . Prove things honest in the sight of all men."

If thine enemy hunger, feed him; if he thirst, give him drink; for in so doing thou shalt heap coals of fire on his head."

MEMORY VERSE—Romans 12:9.

Worship Theme Is Announced For Lutheran Service

In the absence of the Rev. G. L. Troutman, Intern Jacques Schweiss will conduct the 10:15 a. m. worship service in Trinity Lutheran church and the 7:30 p. m. service in Christ Lutheran church at Lick Run. His sermon theme will be "Redeeming Righteousness," based on a portion of the Sermon on the Mount, Matthew 5:17-21.

Intern Schweiss says: "God has set a certain standard for each one to attain in order to be righteous. That standard is the unchangeable and perfect God of the Bible. In addition to telling us that we must be perfect even as he is perfect, he helps us to know that perfection by giving to us the 10 commandments. Here we know God's demands for perfect righteousness."

"Even further, God has indicated that he will not accept lip service to this standard of righteousness. Mere outward conformity to His Holy Law will not do. God demands that our very hearts and souls and minds be absolutely perfect, in complete harmony with his own perfect inner person."

"As we look at what God demands of us and at what we ourselves are, we realize how utterly we have fallen short of the mark. We have sinned—we are sinners—I am not righteous. And when we have individually come to this place where we feel wholly unworthy, God can work in us. God can make us righteous in His sight, if we will but let Him. He will move us to repent of each sin against Him and man. Then He will show us the Redeeming Righteousness that is in His Son Jesus Christ alone. Out of His Word He will show us how His Son lived a perfect life and died an all-sufficient death and rose in power that we might be righteous because of Him before God Almighty. Accept Christ now as your personal redeeming righteousness."

Children's choir will sing the anthem and lead the congregation in the singing of the hymns.

At 6:30 p. m. Tuesday the Luther League will meet in the parish house for its regular July meeting. At 7 p. m. Thursday, junior choir will rehearse and the Lutheran Brotherhood will meet in the parish house at the same time.

If you aid your budget by making the family clothes on your sewing machine, it's a real help to "press as you stitch." But remember that pressing rules vary. Synthetics and blends take a low heat; set dial for rayon, nylon or low. Natural silk requires slightly more heat than rayons; light cottons take slightly more heat than silk; heavy cottons and linens require the hottest iron of all. Wool should be pressed with steam. Use a velvet press board for velvet.

Bible Words To Live By

COLOSSIANS 2:5—"For though I be absent in the flesh, yet am I with you in spirit, joying and beholding your order, and the steadfastness of your faith in Christ."

This favorite verse tells us that no matter how widely separated we may be from those we love, nevertheless we can be confidently united to them in spiritual comradeship.

The apostle Paul wrote these affectionate lines in the middle of a deep theological discussion. See how personal they are, and then remember that they were penned in the cell of a jail in Rome.

Pauls tells us that physical distance is no barrier to the comradeship of those who cherish spiritual truth and righteousness.

That means a great deal to those whose sons, husbands or lovers are at war-fronts far from home, as also to the bereaved.

Keeping our faith steadfast and in order assures us of this eternal fellowship.

'Sound Doctrine' To Be Theme In Christ Church

"Enduring Sound Doctrine" is the sermon subject planned Sunday for the church of Christ, meeting at 159 E. Main St.

Text for this study will be taken from the apostle Paul's charge to Timothy, "I charge thee therefore before God, and the Lord Jesus Christ, who shall judge the quick and the dead at his appearing and his kingdom; preach the word; be instant in season, out of season; reprove, rebuke, exhort with all long suffering and doctrine. For the time will come when they will not endure sound doctrine; but after their own lusts shall they heap to themselves teachers, having itching ears; and they shall turn away their ears from the truth and shall be turned unto fables." (2 Tim. 4:1-4)

"It is evident that the same conditions exist today as are here foretold by the apostle Paul," points out Evangelist Charles Cochran in giving a preview of the lesson.

"This is shown from the disposition of many to disregard a plain 'thus saith the Lord' in matters of religious practice and doctrine and follow teachers who preach a compromising or 'social gospel.' When people will deliberately turn their backs on the plain teaching of the Bible and accept instead the untaught opinions of uninspired men they have drifted into a dangerous state spiritually."

"The gospel of Christ is profitable for doctrine, reproof, for correction and instruction in righteousness (2 Tim. 3:16-17). It will completely furnish us unto every good work, and if faithfully followed will win for us a home in heaven. It might not always agree with our wishes in its demands, but we should be pleased to correct our lives in conformity to its holy precepts."

Small fry love toasted bread cubes in a cream soup, under a poached egg or as a base for creamed vegetables, meat or fish. To prepare the cubes, cut soft bread into small squares. Arrange the cubes on a cookie sheet and place in a slow oven; turn the bread occasionally and toast until golden brown on all sides.

Don't over-cook your puffy omelets or they'll be tough and shrink!

'Thirsting' Topic Is Prepared For First EUB Church

In First Evangelical United Brethren church at 9:30 a. m. Sunday, "A Morning Prelude," an organ selection by Miss Lucille Kirkwood will introduce a worship theme, "Thirsting for God."

Of this theme, the Rev. Carl L. Wilson says: "This is the language of the Psalmist while wandering in the wilderness of Judah. It is an experience which is typical of those who have discovered their real need in the wilderness of this world's unsatisfactory pleasures and profits."

"Taken from a text in Psalm 63:1-8, six thoughts take preeminence. The nature of this thirst is of an aching spirit, and an impoverished life. Man is a soul; he is a spirit. There is a yawning gulf within his being, that all the material blessings of this world cannot fill. This soul thirst is an internal evidence of its kinship with God. The object of this thirst is for God "A longing for Thee." Only those who know God will trust Him.

"There are souls that are smitten with intense thirst, but they know not what they really need, so they run to the cisterns, that can hold no water. They will not acknowledge that it is God they need. O living, restless soul, it is the living, restful God you need. There is a cause for this thirsting. The land in which we live is in itself a dry, thirsty place—there is little water for the soul in it."

"There is absolutely nothing of the world that can meet the deep-seated soul-need of man. Ones best environments, apart from the enjoyment of the presence of God, is but a howling wilderness to the awakened; a clamorous emptiness, that only mocks the true hunger of the soul. This world offers the thirsty soul everything but the one thing needful and that is the presence of the Lord. The motive is a bold and large demand—To see Thy Power and Thy glory. There is only one satisfactory vision and that is to see the power and glory of God; to see the power of His saving grace and the glory of His matchless character."

"In the sanctuary of His Holy Word, this revelation is made clear; in the person of His Son, Jesus Christ, His power and glory can be seen. Where this thirst has been created, it is the forerunner of rich and lasting blessing to have the confidence of it. 'My soul shall be satisfied as with marrow and fatness.' God Himself becomes the portion of whosoever seek Him. He makes them to drink of the river of His good pleasure; He leads them in the paths of righteousness and beside the still waters. He restoreth their souls. The closing thought is the guidance of it—'My soul followeth hard after Thee.'"

"When once the thirsty roots of a tree finds the river, they follow after it. So those who have found soul-satisfaction in God abide by the 'Fountain of living water.' If man has found in Him full salvation, he will follow hard after Him in consecrated service. And in this service one finds the full meaning of "Blessed are they that hunger and thirst after righteousness, for they shall be filled."

Other organ numbers by Miss Kirkwood will be "Kind Jesus" and "Marche Religioso." The congregation will sing hymns entitled "Love Divine, All Love Excelling" and "For He Is So Precious To Me."

The church choir, under the direction of Montford Kirkwood Jr., will sing an anthem, "The Lord Is My Light."

Church school classes will study a Bible lesson entitled "A Pattern of Christian Behavior." The school is graded with classes for all ages.

Children's department will meet in the service center for Christian education instruction and Bible study at 9:30 a. m. and at 10:30 a. m. for the junior church worship, when the lesson will be presented by visual aids.

Communion Rite Due Sunday In Calvary Church

"Holy Communion" will be observed Sunday during worship service in Calvary Evangelical United Brethren church. This is the fourth quarterly communion service of the year.

In preparation for the receiving of the communion, the Rev. James A. Herbst will lead the congregation upon the subject, "The Meaning of Holy Communion." In the opening part of the service, he will be assisted by Sunday School Superintendent Dale DeLong and Miss Minnie Wilkerson, pianist.

During the service, the children's department will come into the auditorium for a period of worship with the adults. They will then return to their own department for class sessions.

In the second part of the unified service, the adults will study a Sunday school lesson for the day in their various classes. The lesson theme for Sunday will be "Christian Behavior."

SECURING AFRICA

IN THE EVENT OF WAR, it is conceded that the best NATO could do, as presently constituted, is to fight a delaying action. In due course, most of Europe would go by the boards. This is recognized by both Soviet and Western strategic planners. Africa would then become the Allies' main line of resistance.

While the Western powers, notably the U. S., are working feverishly to make Africa a formidable operational base, the Communists are working just as hard to undermine their efforts. The Reds are conspiring both with the Arab league to thwart the formation of a middle eastern defense alliance with Egypt as the hub, and with dissident native groups (such as the Mau Mau in British Kenya) to foment a state of unrest in the various colonies and protectorates.

Ethiopia is reported to be headquarters of Russian subversive activity throughout much of this area.

NATO nations have been aware of the situation for some time. Moreover, they recognize the futility of their cause should Africa be denied them as a base from which to strike back against any initial Soviet thrust. However from Cairo westward across the top of Africa to Casablanca, wax the hot flames of nationalism. These Britain and France must assuage before Africa can be made secure against the worst possible eventuality.

WHAT IS THE ANSWER?

ONE OF THE LATEST members of the armed forces to be tried and convicted as a traitor to his country is a young chap from New York. As a sergeant in the Air Force, he entered into a conspiracy to pass secrets of the Sabrejet fighter to the Communists.

His conviction brought a sentence of 20 years at hard labor. There have been others in this and previous wars who have betrayed their country and have met the same fate.

Here is a human characteristic which baffles understanding. Spies and saboteurs from the outside are to be expected, but why an American citizen who has been given a part in his country's defense should attempt to betray it can be explained only on the ground of twisted thinking.

The story of Benedict Arnold should serve as a warning to all who contemplate treason. Arnold was a brave soldier who had fought long and valiantly for independence from the British. Angered by what he considered his country's ingratitude, he sold out to the British and escaped to that country, where he was scorned and died in poverty and disgrace.

George E. Sokolsky's

These Days

The main purpose of an intelligence organization of any country is to gather, evaluate and utilize information on the intent of friend and foe alike. Intent is a matter of evaluation and may involve a certain amount of estimating, assuming, and even crystal gazing. A competent intelligence organization does not rule out any possibility; it tries not to be caught short and then have to alibi its failure to forecast the conduct of other nations. It exists to do forecasting and its officials are paid to do precisely that.

The public and even the press know very little about the intelligence activities of our country. They are necessarily secretive and should remain so. It used to be that the Army, Navy, and State Departments functioned independently, gathering their own data and making their own estimates. When this system was in vogue, each department sent copies of data to the others; but each made its own evaluations.

In World War II, the OSS came into existence as a super-espionage organization to specialize in difficult operations. It was over-advertised and glamorized which is never necessary for espionage. That spy is best who is least known or noticed. A hidden organization can become over through a minor indiscretion, thus imperiling the lives of agents. For instance, the single defection of Guzenko in Canada led to the exposure of the whole of Soviet Russia's espionage apparatus in the Western world.

Finally, the Central Intelligence Agency was organized to meet all the needs of the country for intelligence and espionage. The CIA is a large, independent arm of government with a huge budget. If its judgments and evaluations are correct, it can be of the greatest value and whatever is spent on it is justified. If its estimates are wrong and the agencies of government, from the President down, operate on incorrectly evaluated data, then the danger to the country can be enormous.

Therefore the CIA, which gathers, eliminates and evaluates both strategic and tactical data, is a tremendously important agency of government. At present, the CIA is managed by Allen Dulles, brother of the Secretary of State. His predecessor was General Walter Bedell Smith, now Under Secretary of State and one of the closest advisers to General Eisenhower.

It is quite clear from all available data that the intent of the Germans to attack in what came to be known as the Battle of the Bulge could have and should have been known. American intelligence was inadequate, particularly as to the intent of the Germans. There are many explanations of why we failed to know the German intent, but none of them is even plausible.

To cite two more instances: it should have been known, in the early stages of the Korean War, that Chinese troops were marching from Canton to Manchuria to come to the relief of the North Koreans who had been defeated by General MacArthur. A controversy developed as to whether General Charles A. Willoughby, MacArthur's intelligence officer, or the CIA was badly informed. Willoughby blames the CIA and the CIA blames Willoughby. The fact is that an intention of the Chinese Communists, many months in the making and actually in process, was not known to our command until the Chinese struck at us.

Gall Bladder Symptoms Aren't Always Relieved By Surgery

By HERMAN N. BUNDESEN, M.D.

AN often repeated complaint of some persons having surgery done on their gall bladder, is that their symptoms do not disappear after the operation, or that they have a recurrence of their symptoms shortly after the operation has been performed.

These people undergo surgery on their gall bladder with the hope of eliminating the pain in the right upper side, the jaundice or yellow coloring of the skin, the discomfort after eating certain foods, only to find that the operation has not successfully cured their discomforts. It has been estimated that this occurs in about twenty-five per cent of the persons who have their gall bladder removed.

Stones Lodge in Duct

There are many reasons why this may occur. Many times small stones pass through the gall bladder and become lodged in the duct leading from the gall bladder and liver to the intestines. This duct is known as the common bile duct, and stones that are not removed from this duct at the time that the gall bladder is removed may cause the persistent symptoms of gall bladder disease.

Usually, persons who have stones in this duct have a history of jaundice and have had severe cases of gall bladder colic. As many as ten to fifteen per cent of the persons having gallstones also have common bile duct stones. This can be remedied by clearing out this duct at the time of surgery.

Incomplete Removal

Many times the gall bladder is not completely removed at the time of surgery, and even the smallest remnant which may be left in the abdomen can produce the symptoms that were present before surgery was performed.

Adhesions, of course, may form with any operation and also may be the cause for discomfort following a gall bladder operation. However, in most instances, it is best not to operate again to remove them, because they only reform as often as they are cut.

Many diseases of the liver and smaller bile duct can resemble gall bladder disease. However, when definite gall bladder disease is present, the best treatment is usually the surgical removal of the diseased gall bladder in its entirety.

QUESTION AND ANSWER

T. P.: Is there any way that the growth defect from polio can be corrected, especially when one leg is shorter than the other?

Answer: In adolescence and childhood, an operation is now available in which, in the normal extremity, a nail is put through the growth center of the bone in order to slow the growth so that the growth of both legs can be equalized.

CHAPTER EIGHTEEN

IN MANNING's sense of defeat took hold. Torgin continued willingness to have Slash 7 searched indicated that the house held no secret. Yet Purdy had vanished from that coulee dugout, and the sign said that Purdy had been carried away by a horseman. By some honest rancher who'd since lodged Purdy in the Mannington jail? What a laughing stock Flint Manning's son would be if he continued pushing a search for a man who was already behind bars!

Maybe Laura was already on her way to Mannington for help. This thought rankled in him. Flint Manning hadn't needed any posse to back him; even on the Marias, shed of a badge, he'd chosen to go after Texas Joe Bridger alone.

"Where does that door lead?" Manning asked, indicating one in the parlor wall.

"A closet," Torgin moved to the fireplace woodpile and dug from it a whisky bottle. He turned and said in his deep voice, "Sit down and have a drink. You're like a dog chasing his tail, kid. You'll never catch up with it. Sit down, I say. Care to hear the graphophone? I've got a bunch of those Uncle Josh records. Funniest things you ever heard. You might as well make the rest of your stay a friendly call." But the voice wasn't friendly.

Manning shook his head. "There's still Gal."

"He took off this morning on a passer of his own. Matter of fact, he's been hunting you. Doesn't like anyone named Manning. He finally told me so." He held up the whisky bottle and swished its contents. "How about a drink?"

"Have one yourself," Manning said.

In the next ten minutes he put his nose into every ground floor room, seeing the filthy kitchen and the cubbyhole where Torgin slept and another bedroom that probably hadn't been used for months. Manning could have traced his name in the dust of the window sill.

Returning, Manning asked, "Got a cellar in this place?"

Torgin shook his head. "The root cellar was dug before the house went up. It made cellar enough."

"How do I get upstairs?"

Torgin's face tightened, and his eyes shone pale. "The upstairs was closed off four winters back. No sense in heating it, and no need to open it since. Man, haven't you caught on yet that nobody's hid here?"

"Just the same, I'll have a look."

Torgin scowled. "Now that's a fool notion."

The supper bell sounded, clear and mellow and almost in the room. Torgin stood up from the chair, still holding the bottle. "You might as well eat, long as you're here. Let's go and put our feet under the table."

There it was again, the friendly offer without the friendly voice, and now Manning understood. Plain as footprints in the dust, Torgin had been willing enough to let him look everywhere, not balking until upstairs had been mentioned. Torgin had been bluffing and hadn't seen too bright about it at that, showing ease the longer they kept away from the house, even reminding Manning of the root cellar, but getting edgy at the last. And all this while, Torgin had been buying time. Time for Gal to come riding back to Slash 7. Time for Gal to get here and face up to a Manning.

No wonder Torgin had jumped so fast when that last rider had ridden up; only the rider had turned out to be someone named Charley. And there were other signs that pointed to the truth. Torgin had chosen a straight-backed chair in preference to the rockers here in the parlor and walked the width of the room to get back to that particular chair. The chair by the door.

Manning darted quickly to that door and wrenched it open and saw a stairs before him.

Torgin exploded then, and Manning had a quick remembrance of thinking now one poke with a stick could start a grizzly rampaging. Torgin came off the chair, swinging the whisky bottle at Manning's head. Manning pulled his head aside and lunged at Torgin. He could almost see the shout that was rising in Torgin's throat, and he wondered if it would carry to the cook-shack where the crew was now assembling. He couldn't risk that.

He struck out with his left fist and caught Torgin in the midriff. Fat there, all right—too much fat. Torgin's breath went out of him; he stumbled and went down on one knee, but he let go of the whisky bottle and wrapped his arms around Manning's legs and brought Manning down, too. Manning writhed free and got to a stand and started for the stairs.

Only dimly did he hear the front door bang open. That far corner was in shadow with the horn of the graphophone glimmering faintly, but he got a hazy glimpse of two figures. "Hold it!" someone cried, and he knew that voice to be Gal's. But it was Laura Brownlee who was screaming, "Cole! Watch out!"

Now Manning saw Gal move into the room, into the light, a gun in his right hand, the fingers of his left closed around Laura's wrist. Gal's eyes found Manning and impaled him. Torgin, on the floor, let out a throaty roar that held triumph. Manning thought of his gun and fought down a heady impulse to try for it. There was just enough coolness left in him to know that Laura would be standing in the way of the shooting.

The two men stood glaring at each other when Gal stepped sideways into the room, pulling Laura along; he flung her into one of the rawhide-bottomed rockers, not being mean about it, saying absently, "Behave yourself, girl," as though he really didn't know she was on earth. He still had his eyes fixed on Manning; his eyes were a cold blue haze, and in Manning rose the realization that this was the most dangerous moment he'd known in the Bootjack.

Torgin said, "How did you come by her?" jerking his head toward Laura.

"I was riding back from the basin," Gal said tonelessly, his eyes never leaving Manning. "She was hanging around up on the rim. Yesterday I let her get away. This time I brought her in."

Now Torgin was a worried man in the lamplight. His broad face showed this; he was beyond bluster; he'd had time to begin to think, and the tone he used on Gal was almost pleading. "We're on thin ice, you and me," he said. "Unless Purdy names the man I think he will, we're jailbait for fair. Don't you understand? We've got to make Purdy talk before we can do a thing. No two ways about it. I'd have got the truth out of him last night if you hadn't balked at the rough stuff. Remember that, Gal."

"I fetched him here because you wanted him," Gal said. "That didn't mean I was willing to stand by and see fire put to an old man's feet. But that's got nothing to do with what we're talking about."

"It's got everything to do with it," Torgin insisted. "It's all tied together, Gal. You bought into my game when you came here; I bought into yours when I let you stay, knowing"—he shot a cautious glance at Manning—"what I did about your backtrail. If Purdy tells me the right name, I can ride high and handsome in this basin. Right now I'm in a split stick, and you want to wedge me tighter. That's what it adds up to. If you start gunplay in this room probably both of us will look up a rope in a galloway yard. I didn't bargain for that when I took you in, Gal."

The fire burned less brightly in Gal's eyes. "I didn't think about it that way," he said. "What do you want to do?"

Torgin drew his heavy brows together. "What do I want to do? I say let's wrap these two up and put them somewhere till we make Purdy talk. That's it, we'll put 'em away."

"Upstairs?" Gal asked, nodding toward the door Manning had wrenched open.

Torgin shook his head. "Let Purdy see friends around and he might get braver. No, the root cellar, I think." He lifted his gun from leather and wagged it in a wide arc that swept from Manning to Laura and back again. "Come on, you two," he said. "We're going for a walk. Gal, there's a lantern in the kitchen. Fetch it along."

Manning said, "Think twice, Mack. Have you forgot about my badge? You've showed yourself leery of the law. Are you leery enough?"

Torgin's eyes turned scared, but he made his voice bold. "Another night may make a heap of difference."

NATIONAL WHIRLIGIG

news behind the news

Editor's Note: Every Saturday this veteran Washington newspaper correspondent devotes his column to answering readers' questions of general interest on national and international policies and personalities. Questions may be sent direct to Ray Tucker at 6208 Hillcrest Place, Chevy Chase, Md.

WASHINGTON, July 11 — "Is Churchill really sick, or has he suffered a breakdown that may force his retirement fairly soon?" inquires S.B. of Springfield, Mass.

Answer: Obviously, Washington has no authentic information on whether the grand old man has collapsed from age and extraordinary demands on mind and body. It would be indelicate for such an old friend as President Eisenhower to ask that question, even though the answer would be of tremendous importance to us and the world, politically, diplomatically, militarily.

There is a feeling, and a fear, that the prime minister is nearing the close of his career. He is the same age as Syngman

Rhee, 78. Since he covered the Boer war as a newspaper correspondent, he has led a more active life than his World War II colleagues and contemporaries, including the late Joseph Stalin. Nor has he ever spared himself in working, eating and drinking.

DECLINE SEEN — He certainly has not acted like the old Churchill in recent days. Both Ike and Dulles have not been able to obtain definite plans—an agenda—for the now postponed Bermuda conference. He was vague and uncertain, and that is not like him. His characterization of Rhee's freeing of Korean prisoners as "treachery" in a formal Commons address was out of character.

In view of his prophetic denunciation of Hitler and Munich, his insistence on a face-to-face talk with the Kremlin is most peculiar. It bewilders the White House, which will continue to resist the idea. Such softness at a time of internal crisis within Russia itself does not befit the Churchill of "England's finest hour."

PROMISE — "Will not the do-nothing record of this Republican Congress have a bad effect on both President Eisenhower and the GOP?" asks H.F. of Auburn, N.Y. "Unless both House and Senate quit their dawdling and debating, they will not carry out many of their campaign promises."

Answer: It is true that Congress will probably quit without having acted on many major pieces of legislation. But they will have another six or seven months next year in which to fulfill their pledges. They will be judged in 1954 campaign by the achievements of both sessions, not merely the one now drawing to adjournment late this month or early in August.

It is true that Congress may quit without doing anything on modifying the Taft-Hartley Act, extending the Social Security program, lowering taxes and revising the taxation system, which were among the "musts" demanded by Eisenhower in the 1952 campaign.

SOLVED SLOWLY — But these

are major and difficult problems, which should not be disposed of quickly and carelessly. They require careful study if they are to be solved correctly. The nation will not suffer too seriously by a six or eight months' delay.

In fact, there are times when a minimum of legislation is desirable. There has been too much hasty and careless law-making in the last two decades.

Finally, enactment of essential appropriation and foreign aid bills in a time of transition from spending to saving is a greater accomplishment than is generally realized.

RED TRIBUTE — "Is it true," asks D.F. of Charleston, S.C., "that a Russian warship visited England during the coronation ceremonies?"

Answer: Yes. The Smerdlov was among the array of ships which Queen Elizabeth reviewed at Spithead. And British newspapers reported that the loudest cheers for Her Majesty, as her yacht rode down the line, came from the crew of the Red vessel. It seemed to thrill the British correspondents and editors.

Iced Tea and Fruit Ambrosia— Ideal Summer Refreshment

HOT summer days call for refreshment that looks cool, feels cool, tastes cool and is cool. And what combination could be better than thoroughly chilled succulent fruit served on a chilled platter. For added variety in texture and flavor, try dipping the chilled fruit in honey—then in crisp white shredded coconut. To go with the fruit platter—whether you serve it as company refreshment or dessert, add a promise of a tingling cold thirst chaser such as refreshing iced tea. Iced tea looks and tastes better when poured from a glass pitcher into tall glasses that are frosty cold, and it fulfills a thirsty man's anticipation of heat relief. To make iced tea that comes out right every time, with that hefty cool tea flavor that really quenches the thirst and gives you a lift, try this new Open-Saucepan-Iced-Tea Method. Bring 1 quart of fresh water to a full rolling boil in an open saucepan. Remove from heat. Immediately add 6 tablespoons tea. Brew 3-5 minutes. Stir. Strain into a pitcher holding 1 quart of cold water. Do not refrigerate. Keep at room temperature handy to serve any time of day. To serve, put 2-3 ice cubes in a tall glass. Fill with tea. Add sugar and lemon to taste. Since the hot weather season is iced-tea-time, here are a few pointers to remember. Refrigeration is apt to cause iced tea to cloud. Clouding, however, has absolutely no effect on the flavor or quality of tea—rather it is an indication of a superior tea. If you want to bring back its original amber clear color, just add enough boiling water to restore its crystal clearness. Another point to keep in mind to make good tea every time, is that measurements and brewing time must be just as accurate as when you bake a cake.

Giants Show New Power In NL Flag Race

Durochermen Mop Up Dodgers On Their Own Home Grounds

By The Associated Press
The New York Giants, who flourished in second division the first half of the season, suddenly have invited themselves into the National League pennant race with a seven game winning streak.

Starting with their 20-6 rout of the Brooklyn Dodgers last Sunday, the New Yorkers have gained such momentum during the week that they may roll into fourth place before the All-Star vacation which begins after tomorrow's games.

Last night they invaded the wilds of Brooklyn and mopped up on the Dodgers on their home grounds. They trail the first place Bums by 6 1/2 games and meet them again today and tomorrow.

Sal (The Barber) Maglie, who specializes in tormenting the Dodgers, gave them just six hits last night in a 6-1 triumph. The only thing the Dodgers salvaged was their home run hitting streak which they extended to 24 games—one short of the major league record—when Roy Campanella hit one in the second inning.

The loss cost Brooklyn a full game of its slender first place lead over the Milwaukee Braves who whipped third place St. Louis, 5-2. Despite six errors the Philadelphia Phillies clung to fourth place with a 1-3 decision over Pittsburgh.

Going into today's games the Dodgers hold a two game edge over the Braves, 3 1/2 over the Cardinals and 5 over Philadelphia.

Crafty Ken Raffensberger hurled his 31st major league shutout to give Cincinnati a 6-0 victory over Chicago in the front half of a twilight-night twin bill but a three-run homer by Ralph Kiner helped the Cubs win the nightcap, 4-3.

In the American League the leading New York Yankees gained a half game on their nearest rivals, the Chicago White Sox and Cleveland Indians, who fought to a standstill in a doubleheader. The Yankees defeated Washington, 6-1. Cleveland beat Chicago 3-0 in 10 innings on Bobby Feller's first shutout in two seasons. The White Sox scored 10 runs in the seventh inning of the second game and won it easily, 16-5. Boston outlasted Philadelphia 3-2 in 12 innings and the St. Louis Browns, who haven't lost to the tigers in Detroit this year, beat them again, 8-4.

The Yanks now lead by 5.

Iosola's Ensign Sets Pace Mark

GOSHEN, N. Y. (AP)—The Grand Circuit performers moved on to Saratoga Springs, N. Y. today after putting one world record in the books during the five-day session at Historic Track.

The record was established Friday when Joe Neville's Iosola's Ensign paced a mile in 2:02.3 for a new mark for three-year-old geldings. The old mark of 2:03 3/4 was made by Lee Hanover in 1935 and matched in 1936 by Little Pat and in 1945 by Grattan McKiyo.

The race stamped the sign of Ensign Hanover as the favorite to the Little Brown Jug, which will be raced over the Delaware, O., track in September.

Raffensberger, in winning his fifth game against seven losses, hung up his 31st major league shutout and his 28th victory over Chicago compared with only nine losses during his career.

National League Favored 7-5 To Win All-Star Tilt Tuesday

CINCINNATI (AP)—The National League team, boasting one of the most powerful representative squads in years, is a 7-5 favorite to capture its fourth straight victory over the American League in the 20th annual All-Star game at Crosley Field here Tuesday.

Starting pitchers and batting orders will not be named until about noon Monday, but it is expected that Charles Dressen, who will manage the National League, will send Robin Roberts, Philadelphia's remarkable right-hander, to the mound for the first three innings. Roberts, who has won 13 and lost only six this season, pitched in winning All-Star games in 1952 and 1952.

American League pilot Casey Stengel, who will be seeking his first All-Star victory in four straight attempts, is expected to counter with Billy Pierce, Chicago's fine left hander, Pierce, the only southpaw on the junior circuit's six-man pitching staff, will be facing a starting lineup that boasts six left-handers, exclusive of the pitchers. His season record is 10 wins, 4 defeats.

The starting lineups, voted by the nation's fans who cast 4 1/2 million ballots, probably will be as follows:

NATIONAL
1B Ted Kluszewski, Cincinnati
2B Al Schoendienst, St. Louis
3B Eddie Mathews, Milwaukee
SS Pee Wee Reese, Brooklyn
LF Stan Musial, St. Louis
CF Gus Bell, Cincinnati
RF Enos Slaughter, St. Louis
C Roy Campanella, Brooklyn

AMERICAN
1B Mickey Vernon, Washington
2B Billy Goodman, Boston
3B Al Rosen, Cleveland
SS Chico Carrasquel, Chicago
LF Gus Zernial, Philadelphia
CF Mickey Mantle, New York
RF Hank Bauer, New York
C Yogi Berra, New York

Should the game be postponed because of rain, it will be rescheduled for 8 p. m. (EST) Tuesday. If another postponement is necessary, it will be played Wednesday, July 15 at 11 a. m. (EST) If still another postponement develops, it will be rescheduled for 2 p. m. Wednesday.

4 Ohio Teams In Hockey Loop

TOLEDO (AP)—It will still be known as the International Hockey League next season, but four of the teams will represent Ohio cities—Marion, Troy, Toledo and Cincinnati.

Governors of the league last night approved Marion and Louisville, Ky., as new members and dropped Milwaukee. The two other holdover clubs in the loop are the Grand Rapids, Mich. Rockets and the Fort Wayne Komets.

CROSLY FIELD, Cincinnati, will be the battleground as the stars of the American and National leagues clash in their annual game Tuesday, July 14. The rival managers, Charley Dressen (upper left) of the Brooklyn Dodgers, the Nationals' leader, and Casey Stengel (upper right) of the New York Yankees, the Americans' pilot, appear here to be extremely confident of victory. (International)

Pennsy Youth Favored In Ohio Amateur

CLEVELAND (AP)—A Pennsylvanian, the youngest player in the tournament, loomed today as the No. 1 choice to annex Ohio's 47th State Amateur Golf Championship.

Everyone around Pine Ridge Country Club's 6,125-yard, par 71 course had Arnold Palmer, 23-year-old Coast Guardsman from Latrobe, Pa., tagged as the one to take the title as four survivors went into today's semifinals.

Palmer qualifies for the Buckeye crown because he's stationed in Cleveland and is a member of the host club. His air-tight game takes care of the rest.

He tangles today with Bob McCall, 27-year-old Youngstown swinger. McCall, former football captain for Colgate, Friday knocked out Tom Jones Jr., the 1951 champ and '52 runnerup.

In the other match, Bob Roll of Greenville, 24-year-old former Ohio junior champ who tied three times for the state high school crown, will meet Howard Baker Saunders of Gallipolis. Saunders, 32-year-old insurance man, twice won the Big Ten title.

Redlegs Divide Pair With Cubs

CINCINNATI (AP)—The Chicago Cubs probably wish they had never let go of veteran left-hander Ken Raffensberger of Cincinnati.

Raffy, who will be 36 next month, shut out the Cubs Friday night 6-0 in the opener of a twilight bargain bill. The Bruins took the second game from the Redlegs 4-3.

Raffensberger, in winning his fifth game against seven losses, hung up his 31st major league shutout and his 28th victory over Chicago compared with only nine losses during his career.

Boys Club added two more in the sixth, while Earley was holding Circleville scoreless through the last two innings. Boys Club had three errors against the locals' five.

Despite their latest setback, the Boydmens—in their first season of nationwide LBL play—are battling on a level or better against Columbus teams with far more experience.

Circleville's Little Stars, Little Leaguers to represent the city against out-of-town foes probably will open their season here next week. The visiting team has yet to be announced.

City league fans were tuned, meanwhile, for two nights of all-out battling early next week in Ted Lewis Park.

Hot engagements are in prospect for the Little League, but they'll probably be even hotter in the older loop.

ELKS TEAMS, leading in both leagues, will tangle with Rotary outfits at 6 p. m. Monday. This is an explosive menu which can produce almost anything for the "kid baseball" followers.

Behind their hurling ace, Don Rowland, the Elks in the Little League threaten to pull further away from the pack by adding the Rotarian scalp to their unbeaten record. On the other hand, Earl Dean's little Rotary nine displayed tremendous courage and power Thursday night when the club scored eight runs in the last inning to beat the Jaycees.

Furthermore, Rotary will pull up alongside the Elks on top the pile if Rowland can hypnotize Ronnie Bennington's league leaders Monday night.

The Elks-Rotary match will carry even more dynamite in the Little Bigger League.

From the beginning of the city league schedule, when the two clubs wrestled to a tie, Jaggy Davis and Cecil Andrews have had their boys pointed for the game coming up Monday. Andrews hasn't been happy over the showing

Errors, Walks Hurt All-Stars, Boys Club Rallies For 8-5 Win

Errors and walks cost heavily Friday night when Circleville's Little Bigger League All-Stars failed to hold an early lead and bowed to the Boys Club of Columbus by 8 to 5. It was the second time the city's entry in nationwide LBL competition invaded enemy soil.

The Columbus nine collected only three hits, but Manager Dick Boyd's Circleville boys were charged with five bobbles afieled. The All-Stars

Driver Injured In Pileup Of Sulkies On Hilliards Oval

COLUMBUS, O. (AP)—Driver Stan Applegate received head injuries and cuts in a two-sulky collision at Hilliard's Raceway Friday night.

Applegate was thrown from his sulky when his horse, Red Diamond, crashed into the sulky of Three Star Miss, who had fallen on the track in the eighth race.

Applegate was taken to a Columbus hospital, where his condition was reported as "fair."

Driver Willard Mikesell won two photo finishes — with Suzy Haven in the third and Fox Valley Spud in the ninth. Gus Thompson, driven by Forrest Edwards, won the featured seventh race.

Detroit Picks Up Branca From Bums For Waiver Price

DETROIT (AP)—The Detroit Tigers Friday acquired veteran pitcher Ralph Branca from the Brooklyn Dodgers via the waiver route.

The 27-year-old right hander will join the Tigers here Saturday.

Branca, a 6-foot three-inch 200 pounder, has appeared in seven games for the Dodgers this year. He has not been credited with a win or loss.

Branca remains a mystery. Back in 1947, when he was 21 and fresh out of New York University, he won 21 ball games in the National League. He won 14 the next year, then 13, down to seven and back to 13 in 1951. Then it happened.

Brooklyn and New York finished in a tie for first place. Each had won a playoff game. Don Newcombe, struggling with every pitch, coddled a 4-1 lead into the ninth inning of the third and final game at the Polo Grounds.

Newcombe had lost one run of his lead and there were men on second and third with one out when Manager Chuck Dressen, calling his bullpen by telephone, got the word, "Branca is ready."

Branca threw one pitch to Bobby Thomson, a called strike. The next roto into the left field stands for a home run that left its mark on Branca as surely as Fred Merkle's failure to touch second base in another game in the same park left its stamp on him.

There was an unforgettable picture in the papers the next day of Branca, slumped in utter despair,

Jacoby Resigns At Washington

WASHINGTON, C. H. — Coach Fred Jacoby, who brought Washington C. H. High School one of its finest football seasons last year, has resigned.

Local school officials were informed by telegram Friday — the deadline for teacher resignations — that Jacoby has accepted a position as coach with a Madison, Wis., high school. He has been in that city studying for a master's degree at the University of Wisconsin.

Jacoby's team won nine games last season, chalking up 57 points against all opponents' total of 32. It was his first season here, having transferred from Bremen. He is a native of Logan.

One of the shortest boxing bouts on record occurred on May 12, 1940, when Willard Dean knocked out Claude Allen in 11 seconds at Corpus Christi, Tex.

The average score of 55 football games played since 1947 by Michigan State teams under coach Biggie Munn is 30-11 in favor of the Spartans.

Three-Day Deer Season Booked

COLUMBUS (AP)—The state wildlife division said today Ohio will have a three-day deer season this year from Dec. 17-19, but the division has not yet decided which counties will be open.

It set the squirrel season from Sept. 15-Oct. 15 with the bag and possession limit four.

Bags, and possession limit and season end on rabbit, pheasant, grouse and partridge will not be established until after the August game survey. Opening date on those and the fur-bearing animals is Nov. 16.

Pilots Play 'Hide and Seek' With Guided Missiles

Men Failed Only Once To Recover Rocket

Average Search Flight Continues About Two Hours

An Army unit attached to Holloman Air Development Center near Alamogordo, N. M., has one of the atomic age's strangest tasks—playing hide-and-seek with rockets and guided missiles.

The seven officers and 33 enlisted men of Detachment Three, 9393rd Technical Service Unit, track down and recover remnants of rockets and guided missiles test-fired at Holloman or at Army Ordnance's White Sands Proving Ground.

With five single-engine L-19A airplanes and a ground fleet of jeeps and weapons carriers, these soldiers play tag with man-made meteors over the 4,000-square-mile Army-Air Force desert range.

Aloft in spotter-aircraft, pilots of the unit often can follow the path of a missile when it is fired, thus directing the ground crew to the landing point.

NINETY PER cent of the air missions are flown at an altitude below 500 feet, the better to keep an eye on the speeding quarry. The average search flight lasts about two hours.

On the easy missions, a puff of smoke pin-points the landing spot and the missiles are found easily. But sometimes the hunting can be hard and prolonged work.

It took 28 hours of desert scouting to find the remains of one rocket, which had parachuted into a canyon. Planes had to fly low between the canyon walls, and the updrafts of air usually found in canyons considerably complicated the search.

When a pilot spots a missile, he directs the ground team to the site by signals and message drops.

A dropped smoke grenade can be used to mark the location of the missile, and often the pilot shows the way by wagging his wings, circling and then spurring in the right direction to keep the ground crew on the track.

More complicated instructions are dropped in weighted message bags attached to long, colorful streamers.

DETACHMENT Three arrived at Holloman in October, 1952, and despite the great area of the desert range, only once have the men failed to bring back the missile they set out to find.

Besides their work at shadowing missiles after they are fired, the men have the job of scouting the firing area before a shot to make sure nobody has strayed into the path of the weapons.

Reds Have 500 A-Bombs, Belief

ALBUQUERQUE, N. M. (AP)—According to one of the nation's top atomic scientists, Russia may now have up to 500 atomic bombs.

"But," added Dr. Alvin C. Graves, "Russia still trails the U. S. both in quantity and quality of atomic weapons. That, I believe is the only reason we are not now involved in a major war."

Graves is director of scientific tests for the Atomic Energy Commission. His remarks were made in an interview here.

Look Out, Men; Sweater Hat Is Latest In Millinery Field

By DOROTHY ROE
Associated Press Women's Editor

NEW YORK (AP)—The answer to the current headaches of the millinery industry may be the "sweater hat," introduced during this week's rash of custom fall hats shown by John Fredericks, once known as the "Mad Hatter."

The "sweater hat" might well become the national fad that the millinery industry is praying for—a fad of such proportions as the "Empress Eugenie" hat of the 1830's, which overnight made previous hat styles obsolete.

It's simple enough to be copied in the hat-bar price range, cute enough to be flattering to all types, sure to appeal to the legion of U. S. sweater girls.

With slight variations in shape, the "sweater hat" is a beanie or pillbox of velours with a ribbed-knit sweater cuff in matching color. It looks casual enough to wear with sports clothes, dressy enough to wear with town clothes or fur coats, novel enough to attract hatless customers.

Industry representatives present at the John Fredericks showing brightened up noticeably as the parade of hats progressed, and toward the end were looking positively cheerful.

Many had attended earlier in the week the fall clinic of the Millinery Merchandising Executives' Association, at which various suggestions were made for stimulating lagging sales throughout the country. But the principal complaint was:

"We need a completely new design—not just something that sold well last year."

Clearly the executives felt that women would have to be jolted into

Chemicals Play Major Role On Farm

New Dopes Adding $1 Billion Yearly To Rural Incomes

NEW YORK (AP)—The newest thing down on the farm is the spectacular job being done by chemicals for agriculture.

These chemicals are estimated to be adding about one billion dollars a year to farm income just by maintaining the fertility of the land and controlling insects.

The farmers seem to be convinced. Last year, they bought more than 1½ billion dollars worth of chemicals. That included 23 million tons of fertilizers, 250 million pounds of insect killers, 50 million pounds of weed killers, and a growing volume of seed disinfectants, growth stimulants, soil conditioning chemicals and fungicides, wood preservatives and animal medicines.

The Manufacturing Chemists' Association figures that fertilizer alone increased national harvests by 20 per cent, and says the farmer is reinvesting six cents out of every crop dollar to keep up the fertility of his land. For every 10 cents spent on pesticides, says the association, one dollar is returned.

Some 40 potent chemicals coming out of industry's laboratories since the end of World War II have helped the farmer against the insect horde that chews up several billion dollars worth of food in the field every year. New weed-killers have cleared many thousands of overgrown acres.

Your steaks, pork chops and chickens are more reasonably priced because of the job chemical products are doing in disease prevention and better feeding of livestock and poultry.

The Battelle Memorial Institute of Columbus, Ohio, a research organization, underlines the long-range importance of chemicals in agriculture. Battelle Director Clyde Williams declares:

"The nation's population is increasing annually at the rate of two million persons. At the same time, usable acreage and the farm labor force are decreasing. A pressing need exists for improving the quantity and quality of our agricultural output from presently worked units of land. Perhaps the greatest single opportunity for

Three Local Men Now In Training

Three Pickaway County men have arrived at the 2053rd Army Reception Center at Fort Meade, Md., where they will receive their initial indoctrination into the Army.

They are Pvt. James R. Blankenship, 20, of 384 E. Mound St.; Pvt. David E. Goode, 20, son of Mr. and Mrs. William Goode of Circleville Route 4; and Pvt. Robert E. Chester, 22, son of Mr. and Mrs. Robert S. Chester of Williamsport Route 2.

They will receive uniforms, be classified as to skills and aptitudes and will be selected for that branch of the Army for which they are best qualified. They will then be sent to an Army installation for basic training in that branch of the Army for which they are selected. After basic training they will receive advanced training at installations of the Army Technical Services or schools; or they may be assigned to the Army Field Forces.

U.S. Communists Silent On Beria

NEW YORK (AP)—American Communists are not saying anything, just yet, about the downfall of Lavrenty P. Beria.

The Daily Worker, party organ, was the only English-language newspaper not to mention Beria's arrest. It was reported that both Friday's Daily Worker edition and this weekend's Sunday Worker had gone to press before the Moscow announcement. A Worker spokesman said some editorial comment on the developments could be expected Monday.

Airbase Building Allocation OK'd

WASHINGTON (AP)—The House Appropriations Committee today recommended $68,289,000 for airbase construction within the United States during the year which started July 1. It stipulated the money must come from unspent balances on hand. No new money was proposed.

The amounts allocated to installations included: Gentile Air Force Depot, Dayton, $3,078,000; Wright-Patterson Air Force Base, $2,560,000; Lockbourne Air Force Base, $1,104,000.

Council Studies Loss Of Berries

YARMOUTH, Nova Scotia (AP)—Mrs. Emory Porter claims the Yarmouth town council owes her $30 because she didn't have any strawberries this year.

In presenting the bill, Mrs. Porter told council she had a fine crop of berries until the town sprayed chestnut trees near her home. Some of the spray hit her strawberry patch, ruining the fruit.

The council agreed to hand the bill over to the town's legal authority for investigation.

Peek At Relief Rolls Given OK

Rhee Believed Won Over To Truce Terms

Korean Armistice Near, UN Officials Indicate In Seoul

SEOUL (AP)—President Eisenhower's truce emissary said today he has wound up his secret conferences with President Syngman Rhee and U. S. sources indicated Rhee had been won over to an armistice. A joint communique will be issued at 8 p. m. EST today.

Robertson told a news conference he was leaving for home because "I feel my work is done." He said substantial progress had been made toward winning Rhee over to an armistice in more than two weeks of talks, but refused to give any details.

The armistice negotiations at Panmunjom were, as usual, cloaked in secrecy. The delegates met for 27 minutes in the morning, then returned to the conference hut for a 23-minute afternoon session.

They will meet again at 9 p. m. EST Saturday.

There were mounting signs that an armistice was near.

These new developments in the Korean truce tangle came a few hours after Allied and Communist negotiators met twice in Panmunjom to discuss final details of an armistice.

RHEE TOLD newsmen Saturday he and Robertson had reached "a friendly understanding" on problems relating to a truce.

And while Robertson refused to comment on his talks with the Korean statesman, he appeared well satisfied with his mission as he talked with newsmen after a reception in his honor at the U. S. Embassy in Seoul.

Robertson said he would leave for Tokyo Sunday morning and would confer Monday and Tuesday with Gen. Mark Clark, the UN commander, and Japanese officials. He said he would leave for (Continued on Page Two)

Sailor Dies In Chair For Love Slaying

COLUMBUS (AP)—A 29-year-old sailor died in Ohio Penitentiary's electric chair Friday night for killing a buddy's wife.

Robert H. Gemmel died repeating prayers recited by two Catholic chaplains. He was converted to the Catholic religion in the penitentiary and baptized Friday.

Gemmel, father of four, was convicted of the murder last July 31 of Mrs. Laura Grimshaw, 25, wife of one of Gemmel's friends at Port Columbus Naval Base. The prosecution claimed Gemmel killed her because she threatened to tell of their love affair.

Less than two hours before the execution Gov. Frank J. Lausche announced he would not intervene a second time. Lausche had granted Gemmel a stay of execution, originally set for April 1.

Sheriff Ralph J. Paul said Gemmel told him Monday that when he was convinced he would be executed, he'd confess to another, earlier, slaying.

But to the end, he refused to discuss the matter with officials. It was reported in San Diego, Calif., Gemmel might be implicated in the 1947 slaying of a Canadian woman who was vacationing in California. That slaying has never been solved.

Gemmel's wife, Lona, whom he married in 1946, pleaded with Lausche Thursday to save her husband's life. Their oldest child is four years old, and the youngest was born after Gemmel entered the penitentiary last December.

Judge Pleased To Oblige Man

HALIFAX, Nova Scotia (AP)—Charles Hoffman says if Halifax County had a better jail he would not have broken out of it.

"It's a disgrace," he told Police Court Magistrate R. J. Flinn Friday. "I wouldn't be in some of my present troubles if they had a good jail. I want to get out of that place as soon as possible."

Flinn obliged. He sent Hoffman to Dorchester Penitentiary for three years.

THE TWO YOUNG SONS of executed atom spies Julius and Ethel Rosenberg—Michael (left), 10, and Robert (right), 6—are picking up the threads of life in quiet Toms River, N. J., whose residents believe the boys should not be blamed for the treason committed by their parents. Shown frolicking with a playmate, Mike and Bob have boarded at the home of Bernard and Sonia Bach, close friends of the Rosenbergs, for a year. Eventually Emanuel H. Above-Average Corn, Wheat Crops Predicted This Year

WASHINGTON (AP)—The Agriculture Department has forecast this year's corn crop at 3,336,501,000 bushels and the wheat crop at 1,174,708,000 bushels.

This was the first estimate of the year for corn. It compares with last year's crop of 3,306,735,000 bushels and the 10-year (1942-51) average of 3,036,735,000.

Officials have said a crop of more than 3,350,000,000 bushels this year might require use of production controls next year to keep surpluses from getting larger.

The wheat estimate is 42,208,000 bushels more than the 1,132,500,000 bushel forecast of a month ago. It compares with last year's crop of 1,291,447,000 and the 10-year average of 1,088,548,000.

Secretary Benson has invoked marketing quotas on next year's wheat crop to prevent accumulation of top-heavy surpluses.

THE WINTER wheat crop was put at 821,372,000 bushels, which was 51,488,000 bushels more than last month's forecast of 769,884,000. It compares with last year's crop of 1,032,801,000 and with the 10-year average of 797,237,000.

The spring wheat crop was estimated at 353,336,000 bushels, which was 9,280,000 bushels less than last month's forecast of 362,616,000. It compares with last year's crop of 238,646,000 and the 10-year average of 291,311,000.

Durum wheat was put at 28,701,000 bushels in the first estimate of the year for this class. It compares with 21,363,000 last year and 37,360,000 for the 10-year average.

Spring wheat other than durum was reported at 324,635,000 bushels in the first estimate for this class of the year. It compares with 217,283,000 last year and a 10-year average of 253,952,000.

The rye crop was estimated at 17,422,000 bushels compared with 17,087,000 a month ago, last year's crop of 15,910,000 and the 10-year average of 25,837,000.

The acreage for harvest, the average yield per acre and production, respectively, of important crops for Ohio:

Winter wheat, 2,339,000; 27 and 63,153,000; corn, 3,531,000; 52 and 183,612,000; oats, 1,154,000; 40 and 4,616,000.

Other guards rescued them by placing a ladder against the hospital walls and bringing them down. The ill convicts were left inside.

The convicts are objecting to his stern discipline, Gladden said. Convict demands also include: Improvement in laundry service, food and clothing.

Inspection of the prison by the press and health authorities. Changes in the practice of placing unruly prisoners in isolation and segregation.

Gas Storage Bill Hits New Snag
COLUMBUS (AP)—The Ohio House Friday approved (and at the same time possibly killed with an amendment) a Senate-passed measure intended to give gas companies authority to appropriate land for underground gas storage.

Utility officials and others asserted the amendment proposed by Rep. David J. Lewis (R-Perry) may not only doom acquisition of future fields, but wreck gas firms' present storage program. The amendment prohibits gas storage within 5,000 feet of an underground coal mine or an "unmined coal seam which is mineable by underground efforts."

Big 3 Ministers See Red Change

Beria Ouster May Bring Return To Rough, Tough Soviet Policies

WASHINGTON (AP)—The Big Three Western foreign ministers look to reports from their embassies in Moscow today to throw fresh light on the dramatic Beria purge before they try finally to assess its importance.

Under summons from Secretary of State Dulles, U. S. Ambassador Charles E. Bohlen was flying home to report.

Bohlen had just arrived in Paris from Moscow for a vacation. The State Department said he had foreseen and reported a week ago the probabilities for the downfall of Lavrenty P. Beria as Russia's No. 2 man and rival for power of Premier Georgi Malenkov.

In their initial discussions, Dulles, Foreign Secretary Salisbury of Britain and French Minister Bidault were reported to have agreed Friday that the affair might mean a return by Moscow to a tougher policy toward the West and harsher rule for the captive lands of Eastern Europe.

THE FOREIGN ministers discussed German problems Friday, specifically unification and the proposed role of Germany in Western defense. The conversations also touched on the postponed Bermuda conference and suggestions for top level meetings with Malenkov.

Diplomatic informants gave this account of the opening meeting:

Most of the time was spent in discussing the Beria affair and Russian relations. Three broad conclusions stood out in the exchange of views:

1. Weaknesses which have recently shown up in the Soviet system, such as the uprising in East Germany and the power struggle in Moscow, tend to justify the foreign policy of the West in dealings with Russia.

2. There is no reason so far seen to change the Western policies of building strength against Soviet power.

3. Toward the satellite countries the Western Powers should pursue a middle of the road course aimed at keeping alive the hope of freedom but avoiding moves which could prompt suicidal revolt.

All three ministers reported they were not surprised at Beria's fate and agreed that Malenkov, with his power secure, might take a firmer line toward the outside world. Beria had been identified by some experts with a "soft" policy.

Further discussions:

EUROPEAN Defense Community—Dulles stated the U. S. view that the treaty under which West Germany would be permitted to rearm in a European army should be speedily ratified. Bidault stressed the difficulties of getting French parliamentary approval.

Big Four meeting of Eisenhower, Malenkov, Prime Minister Churchill and French Premier Laniel—There appeared to be agreement that the important question is one of timing. Dulles indicated the U. S. government does not think this is the time for such a session and looks for no magical solution from it.

Salisbury said his government wants a meeting, but at the proper time, and indicated he would not press for action now.

Broad Soviet Reforms Due?

West Diplomats Study Latest Kremlin Purge

MOSCOW (AP)—Western observers believe Soviet leaders plan to announce broad reforms affecting millions of citizens as an aftermath of Lavrenty P. Beria's ouster.

The reforms were expected to include important changes in the administration of Soviet law and agricultural policies, as well as price cuts and moves to increase the Russian standard of living.

An editorial in the Communist party newspaper Pravda gave support to the view that some changes were in the wind. It charged Beria had used his power as first deputy premier and police chief to block "import and urgent" measures in agriculture and law reform. With his removal it seemed logical that the government would go ahead with these measures.

Pravda also claimed the entire Soviet people warmly approved the actions of the party and the government against Beria, fired from the party and government as an "agent of imperialism."

WESTERN sources here expressed the view that Beria's ouster did not indicate any policy reversals by Premier Malenkov's government, but rather a strengthening of those policies.

Western European diplomatic sources also speculated that the purge of the former police czar did not indicate any change in Russian foreign policy.

In Vienna, the newspaper Vienskoe Slobodne Listy, published by Czechoslovak exiles in the Austrian capital, suggested that a struggle for power similar to the Kremlin battle that led to Beria's downfall is now going on in Communist-ruled Czechoslovakia.

The newspaper said the fight for personal power and Soviet support was being waged between President Antonin Zapotocky and Premier Antonin Novotny, first secretary and virtual boss of the Czech Communist party.

Although Beria was officially accused of attempting to "undermine the Soviet state in the interest of foreign capital," Pravda said little on this theme.

EFFECT OF NITROGEN on oat crop is demonstrated by Ray T. Ehler, a farmer near California, Mo. The stalks of oats he is holding were planted on the same day and received the same fertilizer treatment, except that those in his left hand received 40 pounds of nitrogen to acre. Those oats averaged 49 bushels an acre, while oats in right hand, untreated with nitrogen, averaged only 25.

School Subsidy Bill Slated For Approval In Legislature

COLUMBUS (AP)—The Ohio 100th General Assembly has started the machinery for a fast but orderly adjournment with House approval of a $231 million school subsidy bill.

It was the last key measure on the legislative docket and Senate approval of House changes is certain.

Weary legislators ended their 27th work week Friday finding great humor in the fact final adjournment Tuesday is scheduled for the 100th legislative day of the 100th General Assembly.

The school bill, as it came out of the House, represented a compromise designed to heal the city-rural breach which developed late in the session.

The House-approved school subsidy carries an extra $3 a year for each elementary and high school pupil in Ohio's 1,365 school districts and $1.50 more a year for each kindergarten pupil.

BUT WEAK school districts will receive more, depending on their ability to raise money locally.

The Senate, after a rugged battle, had decided to apply all additional school funds granted by this Legislature to needy school districts. It pegged the school subsidy at $231 million. That was $3 million more than the House had planned and $16 million more than Democratic Gov. Frank J. Lausche recommended.

The compromise was to make the difference between the Senate and House figures apply to all the school districts of the state equally. That gave city school districts part of what they wanted.

Sen. C. Stanley Mechem (R-Athens), Senate majority leader, said there is no question that the Senate will accept the compromise.

The Senate has yet to act on a House-approved bill to finance the state's capital improvements in the next two years. The bill, known as the "additions and betterments" measure, gained Senate finance committee approval Friday. The total tops $45 million, some 6 1/2 million above the House figure. The money for the bill comes from the state surplus.

Southwest Gets Ike's Promise

AMARILLO, Tex. (AP)—The drought-burned Southwest had the promise of President Eisenhower today that the government "will not dilly-dally" while cattle starve on barren ranges.

While some ranchers were convinced that price supports on cattle were the only way the cattle industry in Texas, Oklahoma, New Mexico, Arkansas and Colorado could survive, the President did not mention supports in his ten-minute appearance before the group. But Texas Governor Allan Shivers said the governors and the President had discussed proposals for price supports more fully than any other point.

Kremlin Urged To Let Yanks Help Germans

$15 Million Surplus Ready For Shipment, President Declares

WASHINGTON (AP)—President Eisenhower's offer of food for rebellious East Germany faced the quarreling Kremlin today with a choice between accepting capitalist aid or letting Germans go hungry.

The U. S. proposal Friday to begin immediate delivery of $15 million worth of food to Germany's Soviet-controlled Eastern zone was made directly to Moscow.

That bypassed the East German Communist government, which the U. S. has never recognized, and put the issue squarely up to the Kremlin, which just booted Lavrenty P. Beria from his No. 2 perch as boss of the Soviet.

The dramatic stroke caught the Communists at a time when they were fighting the fires of revolt among Moscow-dominated peoples and stirring up sparks among the top men in the Kremlin.

Their choice lay between accepting help from the Americans they call "decadent capitalists" or rejecting aid whose humanitarian aspects can not escape the restive peoples of the satellite countries.

THERE WAS AN air of suddenness about the President's move, announced while he was conferring in Texas with governors of the drought-stricken Southwest.

White House officials said most of the food would come out of existing surpluses held by the Commodity Credit Corporation under the price support program.

But some of the commodities, like sugar, would have to be purchased outright before shipment abroad, they said.

Foreign Aid Chief Harold Stassen said the offer was made under authority of the Mutual Security Law which permits the President to extend up to $20 million in aid to any one country.

Besides sugar, the commodities would include grain, lard and soy bean oil among others.

Eisenhower acted in response to a letter from Chancellor Adenauer of Western Germany. Both Adenauer's letter, dated July 4, and Eisenhower's response were released by the White House.

Adenauer's letter asked the U. S. to join his country in helping East (Continued on Page Two)

State Holds Driver Permit After Mishap

COLUMBUS (AP)—The state motor vehicle bureau today held the driver's license of Walter Frugate of Portsmouth after failing to get Portsmouth officials to arrest him under the new Ohio Financial Responsibility Law.

R. E. Foley, state motor vehicle registrar, said Frugate, who was involved in an automobile accident in Cuyahoga County March 17, could redeem his license by meeting provisions of the new law.

If city solicitor Lowell Thompson of Portsmouth had issued an affidavit for Frugate as Foley wanted, the Portsmouth motorist would have been the first to be arrested under the law.

Frugate, who formerly lived at Chardon, failed to file a written report on the accident near Willoughby within five days. This is the section of the law Foley wanted Thompson to enforce. But Thompson said the affidavit should be issued in the county where the accident occurred.

Foley dropped plans to arrest Frugate after that but picked up his driver's license Friday.

The state motor vehicle registrar said his bureau was working on several similar cases.

'Loot' Is Buried (Not By Thieves)

WASHINGTON (AP)—Washington police are working on a theft case in which the "loot" was buried, but not by the thieves.

The loot is about 80 coffins which police say were stolen by casket company employees and sold to undertakers. Four men were arrested.

Rhee Believed Won Over To Truce Terms

THE SOUTH Korean President indicated earlier that he and Robert had not come to a full agreement.

"I think some more meetings will be held," he told a news conference, "but we have covered all the important points."

"I think a final decision will come from the United States."

South Korean Foreign Minister Pyung Yung Tai said that "the talks we have had here have ended, but there may be other talks."

Robertson paid glowing tribute to Rhee at his news conference.

"Never in my life have I met a more dedicated man than President Rhee," he said. "He is a real patriot. He is single-mindedly for the welfare of Korea."

"And I am certain that his actions in this matter have been well above any personal plane. "He has dedicated his life to a free and independent Korea and everything he does is aimed at achieving that object. It is an object we must all respect, and I personally have a tremendous admiration for President Rhee."

Chinese Storm Porkchop Hill

SEOUL (AP)—Chinese troops stormed up the slopes of embattled Porkchop Hill in broad daylight today and wrested the crest of the western front outpost from American troops.

The Chinese launched the assault at 10:10 a. m. when they sprang from bunkers on the western and northern tips won in five days of bitter fighting for the outpost only 40 miles from Seoul.

In the air, Red night fighters unsuccessfully attacked Allied B-29s bombing a newly-repaired bridge network deep in Northwest Korea which funnels Red supplies into Korea from Manchuria.

Personal Income Up By 7 Pct.

WASHINGTON (AP)—Americans' total personal income will run 7 per cent higher this year than last, if the government-reported levels for the first five months hold up.

The Commerce Department Friday reported the May income from employment, farm operations, rents and other sources was at an annual rate of $284 billion, up $1 billion from April. For the first five months the rate was $282 billion.

Lad, 6, Crushed

HAMILTON (AP)—Six-year-old William Clarence Morgan was crushed to death Friday under a wheel of a tractor-trailer.

AS REPORTS from Tokyo once more indicate a truce may be near in Korea, Marine Col. James Murray, new chief UN liaison officer, leaves the conference hut at Panmunjom, carrying a letter addressed to UN Commander Gen. Mark Clark. The letter was from the Reds. (International)

True Bachelor Happy, Carefree, With A Crowded Social Calendar

By HAL BOYLE

NEW YORK (AP)—You know what causes more old maids than anything? Bachelors.

All women are convinced the only good bachelor is a former bachelor. They aren't really sporting about their hunting. They not only hate the ones that get away from them. They resent seeing a bachelor escape from another girl.

A young lady who returned empty-handed from a recent June matrimonial safari complained:

"To get married today a girl practically has to grab a boy while the ink is still wet on his high school diploma. The older men get, the more frightened

"I sincerely hope," the President wrote, "that this effort on our part to relieve the plight of the people in East Germany will be welcomed by the Soviet government."

He said he asked the Russians to consider distributing the food through German religious institutions. He invited other free nations to join "in this emergency."

DEATHS AND FUNERALS

JACK MARION

Funeral services were held Thursday in Bowling Green for Jack Marion, 19, son of Mr. and Mrs. Walter Jerald Marion of Bowling Green, formerly of Circleville.

Young Marion died last Sunday in Kansas City, Mo., where he was employed during the summer on a crew spraying weeds along railroad tracks.

He was born Sept. 28, 1934, in Toledo. He was graduated by Bowling Green High School in June, 1952, and had completed his freshman year in Bowling Green State University.

Surviving him, in addition to his parents, are an older brother, Jerald, who is serving in Germany with the Seventh Army Headquarters, and a younger brother, Robert, at home. He was the grandson of Mrs. Lula B. Marion of Columbus, formerly of Circleville.

William W. Steward, 82, of Amanda, a retired carpenter, died at 6:30 a. m. Saturday in the home of a sister, Mrs. John Waites, in Amanda. He had been ill six months.

Mr. Steward was born Dec. 9, 1870, in Fairfield County, son of Lewis and Mary Bauman Steward. He never married.

Surviving him are three sisters, Miss Mollie Steward of Amanda, Mrs. Clay Hitler of Circleville and Mrs. Waites.

Funeral services will be held at 2 p. m. Monday in Van Cleve Funeral Home, Amanda, with the Rev. George Getter officiating. Burial will be in Dutch Hollow cemetery.

Friends may call in the funeral home after 10 a. m. Sunday.

Eight Selected For Test On Health Ratings

First step in annual selection of the "healthiest" boy and girl in Pickaway County was announced Saturday by the Pickaway County extension service.

Four boys and four girls were named to get physical examinations and thus complete the first stage of the nationwide competition. At the time of their selection, the eight were chosen for their outstanding 4-H Club, church and other activities.

Selection of the two county representatives to enter statewide competition will follow physical examinations by Dr. A. D. Blackburn, Pickaway County health commissioner.

Pickaway County's "healthiest" boy was picked as tops in Ohio the last two years, Charles Brown of Circleville Route 2 won the laurels last year, and Ronald Rivers of Mt. Sterling Route 3 was named in 1951.

THE EIGHT named for physical examinations this year are: Rosemary Wright of Ashville Route 2; Nancy Neff of Mt. Sterling Route 1; Nancy Cromley of Ashville Route 2; Joy Eckle of New Holland.

Fred Carpenter of Orient Route 1; Bill Barthelmas of Circleville Route 2; Junior Winfough of Mt. Sterling Route 3; and Everett Thomas of Circleville Route 3.

Dumping Area Getting City's Attention Again

Dirty handwriting on the wall is pointing thumbs down for Circleville's city dump.

City Health Director C. O. Leist Friday said the "dump problem" is getting close attention again, partly because of what he described as failure to carry out important parts of a temporary improvement program.

When smoke and odors from the dump made it a storm center for public criticism last Summer, it was agreed to establish an interim improvement plan. Even at that time, City Council conceded the municipality would "sooner or later" have to act on some better arrangement, possibly a sanitary fill.

One of the rules set up last Summer, Leist pointed out, called for covering the garbage with soil after it is hauled to the dumping grounds. Work in this respect has become slapstick and inefficient, he said, with the result that a new study is being made of other garbage disposal methods.

A REPRESENTATIVE for a machinery firm illustrated the sanitary landfill method with a movie shown to City Council at its last regular meeting. Leist, long an advocate of the sanitary fill plan, said several of the lawmakers seemed especially impressed.

In general, the sanitary fill plan would call for the refuse to be buried at a certain depth in ditches, a portion of which would be covered over at the end of each day with a specially-equipped tractor. Proponents of the idea claim it "eliminates fly breeding," along with having other advantages.

Leist said the city has been warned about the open dump several times by the state. "Sooner or later they'll drop in here and just tell us to close it," he predicted.

The health director said he has reason to suspect that some of the city's unlicensed garbage collectors "are dumping the stuff long before they get it to the dump—in some spot where they figure it won't be found in a hurry."

He has advocated all local garbage collectors be put under a license requirement.

Reckless Driver, Speeder Fined

A reckless driver and a speeder were fined a total of $65 and costs Friday before the court of Mayor Ed Amey.

Roscoe Moore of Columbus was fined $50 and costs for reckless operation on Route 23 north of Circleville. He was arrested by State Patrolman Ray Hoylman.

Mitchell Wiggins of Circleville was fined $15 and costs for speeding at 50 on E. Main St. He was arrested by Special Officer John Lockard.

Lawyer Selected As New Senator

RALEIGH, N. C. (AP)—Alton A. Lennon, 46-year-old Wilmington lawyer, will serve the unexpired part of the late U. S. Senator Willis Smith's term.

Lennon, a Democrat and a former North Carolina state senator, announced immediately after his appointment yesterday by Gov. William B. Umstead that he will seek nomination next year for a full six-year term starting in 1955.

Letter To The Editor

The Circleville Herald encourages letters to the editor on pertinent subjects of local interest. However, unsigned letters will be disregarded. Nom de plume will be used if requested.

EDITOR, THE HERALD: Last Wednesday evening I overheard my mistress read about the latest doings of Council. Imagine my surprise to hear that one of the members was upset because I "mauled a rabbit and chased a robin."

Here I am only a year old and important enough for the town's lawmakers to stop and discuss me. I am very flattered.

I overheard a human friend say since Council is trying to control the bees, dogs and cats, she hoped they'd find time to pass an ordinance against the chattering sparrows and the dirty starlings that are spoiling the paint on her car. That would be quite a meeting.

I can't apologize for the rabbit and robin incident, because I was using the instinct the Lord gave us cats when the world began.

"SURELY, LORD, YOU DON'T MEAN IT?"

Ceaseless Answer To Be Theme For Presbyterians

During worship service Sunday in Presbyterian church, the Rev. Donald Mitchell will preach on the subject, "Answer Without Ceasing."

The sermon is based upon the text in St. Paul's letter to the Colossians, Chapter 1, verse 9. Here he speaks of "Prayer without ceasing." Ceaseless prayer implies ceaseless answer. God answers prayer, and He answers at all times, for "He that keepeth Israel neither slumbers nor sleeps."

In the choir, Mrs. Richard Boerner will sing a soprano solo, "I heard the voice of Jesus Say." This was composed by George T. Parsons, father of G. Thomas Parsons who is known to many in Circleville.

The Choir will lead the congregation in the singing of hymns entitled "Christ Is Made The Sure Foundation," "Jesus, These Eyes Have Never Seen" and "All Hail The Power of Jesus' Name."

At the organ, Mrs. Theodore L. Huston will play "Adoration," "On The Lake of Galilee" and "Postlude in F."

At 3 p. m. in First Presbyterian church, Columbus (Ohio and Bryden), the annual coaching conference of stewardship and promotion will be conducted for all concerned about the life and work of the local churches. Dinner will be served at 6 p. m.

Westminster Fellowship National Assembly Delegates Don Davis and Anne Downing, have returned from Park College, Mo., and report a very successful conference. Senior Conference delegates Donna Mitchell and Barbara Schumm will return from Wooster Monday evening. Juanita Hill, who has been a counselor at the Presbyterian junior camp at Lake Piedmont for the last two weeks, has returned home.

Scout Troop 205 meetings are discontinued for the Summer. They will resume on the first Wednesday in September.

Young people of Westminster Fellowship have set July 22 for their fourth annual ice cream social, which promises to be the best ever! It will be held on the lawn of the church beginning at 5 p. m.

Westminster Fellowship young people have again secured the approval of the board of elders of the church to conduct worship services during the Pastor's absence in August.

Children presented for Baptism by their parents last Sunday were Hal Terrence, son of Presbyterian Elder Hal Spencer and Mrs. Spencer; Roger Clark, son of Mr. and Mrs. Peter L. Hyde; Deborah Kay, daughter of George Wayne Butler now in California, having just returned from service in Korea. Mrs. Butler was accompanied by her father, Lawrence Thornton.

Church Briefs

Women's Society of World Service of Calvary EUB church will meet at 6 p. m. Tuesday in Ted Lewis Park. The meeting will begin with a picnic supper and be followed by the business meeting and social program.

Midweek service of Calvary EUB church will be held at 7:30 p. m. Wednesday in the church auditorium. The Rev. James Herbst will show a series of color slides which he took on his visit to the Red Bird Mission station of the Evangelical United Brethren church, which is located in southeastern Kentucky.

Council of administration of Calvary EUB church will meet at 8:30 p. m. Wednesday following the midweek service.

Children's department of Calvary EUB church will have its Sunday school picnic from 3:30 p. m. to 6:30 p. m. Friday in Ted Lewis Park. Children are to bring a sack lunch and meet at the Park at 3:30 p. m. Games will be planned and ice cream will be furnished for the entire group.

Introducing a new policy of meeting in the homes of members, First Evangelical United Brethren church Service Circles will meet at 8 p. m. Monday, Mary Circle meets with Mrs. Kelly Alderman, 200 E. Main St. for "dollar night." Rebecca Circle meets with Mrs. Loring Davis, Lancaster Pike; and Ruth Circle meets with Mrs. C. O. Kerns, 148 W. Franklin St.

Members of the First Evangelical United Brethren church Brotherhood will meet at 8 p. m. Tuesday in the service center for the first meeting of the new year with the newly installed officers in charge.

"Covenants and Vows" is the Bible study theme to be led by the Rev. Carl L. Wilson in First Evangelical United Brethren church during the prayer and Bible hour at 7:30 p. m. Wednesday.

Church choir of First Evangelical United Brethren church will meet at 7:45 p. m. Wednesday for rehearsal.

Brenda Brown, Carl Gene Porter and Carolyn Jo Metcalf attended intermediate camp Otterbein in Westerville this last week as representatives from the First Evangelical United Brethren church. Young people campers this week are Fred Brown, Tommy Valentine, David Steele, Elliott Hawkes, Nancy Ankrum, Judy Horine and Patty McCain. The Rev. and Mrs. Carl L. Wilson will serve on the camp staff.

The Rev. and Mrs. F. D. Savage will be guest speakers in Circleville Gospel Center for Sunday morning and evening services.

The Rev. and Mrs. Savage went out first to North China and were there until they and other missionaries were evacuated. They then went to postwar Japan, where they had a pioneer ministry in every sense of the word.

The work has grown until there is now a Bible seminary and the Japan Every-Creature Crusade, which is being used of God to reach thousands of homes throughout Japan.

Worship Theme Is Announced For Lutheran Service

In the absence of the Rev. G. L. Troutman, Intern Jacques Schweiss will conduct the 10:15 a. m. worship service in Trinity Lutheran church and the 7:30 p. m. service in Christ Lutheran church at Lick Run. His sermon theme will be "Redeeming Righteousness," based on a portion of the Sermon On The Mount, Matthew 5:17-21.

Intern Schweiss says: "God has set a certain standard for each one to attain in order to be righteous. That standard is the unchangeable and perfect God of the Bible. In addition to telling us that we must be perfect even as he is perfect, he helps us to know that perfection by giving to us the 10 commandments. Here we know God's demands for perfect righteousness."

"Even further, God has indicated that he will not accept lip service to this standard of righteousness. Mere outward conformity to His Holy Law will not do. God demands that our very hearts and souls and minds be absolutely perfect, in complete harmony with his own perfect inner person."

"As we look at what God demands of us and at what we ourselves are, we realize how utterly we have fallen short of the mark. We have sinned—we are sinners—I am not righteous. And when we have individually come to this place where we feel wholly unworthy, God can work in us. God can make us righteous in His sight, if we will but let Him. He will move us to repent of each sin against Him and man. Then He will show us the Redeeming Righteousness that is in His Son Jesus Christ alone. Out of His Word He will show us how His Son lived a perfect life and died an all-sufficient death and rose in power that we might be righteous because of Him before God Almighty. Accept Christ now as your personal redeeming righteousness."

Children's choir will sing the anthem and lead the congregation in the singing of the hymns.

At 6:30 p. m. Tuesday the Luther League will meet in the parish house for its regular July meeting.

At 7 p. m. Thursday, junior choir will rehearse and the Lutheran Brotherhood will meet in the parish house at the same time.

If you aid your budget by making the family clothes on your sewing machine, it's a real help to "press as you stitch." But remember that pressing rules vary. Synthetics and blends take a low heat; set dial for rayon, nylon or low. Natural silk requires slightly more heat than rayons; light cottons take slightly more heat than silk; heavy cottons and linens require the hottest iron of all. Wool should be pressed with steam. Use a velvet press board for velvet.

Bible Words To Live By

COLOSSIANS 2:5—"For though I be absent in the flesh, yet am I with you in spirit, joying and beholding your order, and the steadfastness of your faith in Christ."

This favorite verse tells us that no matter how widely separated we may be from those we love, nevertheless we can be confidently united to them in spiritual comradeship.

The apostle Paul wrote these affectionate lines in the middle of a deep theological discussion. See how personal they are, and then remember that they were penned in the cell of a jail in Rome.

Pauls tells us that physical distance is no barrier to the comradeship of those who cherish spiritual truth and righteousness.

That means a great deal to those whose sons, husbands or lovers are at war-fronts far from home, as also to the bereaved.

Keeping our faith steadfast and in order assures us of this eternal fellowship.

'Sound Doctrine' To Be Theme In Christ Church

"Enduring Sound Doctrine" is the sermon subject planned Sunday for the church of Christ, meeting at 159 E. Main St.

Text for this study will be taken from the apostle Paul's charge to Timothy, "I charge thee therefore before God, and the Lord Jesus Christ, who shall judge the quick and the dead at his appearing and his kingdom; preach the word; be instant in season, out of season; reprove, rebuke, exhort with all long suffering and doctrine. For the time will come when they will not endure sound doctrine; but after their own lusts shall they heap to themselves teachers, having itching ears; and they shall turn away their ears from the truth and shall be turned unto fables" (2 Tim. 4:1-4).

"It is evident that the same conditions exist today as are here foretold by the apostle Paul," points out Evangelist Charles Cochran in giving a preview of the lesson.

"This is shown from the disposition of many to disregard a plain 'thus saith the Lord' in matters of religious practice and doctrine and follow teachers who preach a compromising or 'social gospel.' When people will deliberately turn their backs on the plain teaching of the Bible and accept instead the untaught opinions of uninspired men they have drifted into a dangerous state spiritually."

"The gospel of Christ is profitable for doctrine, reproof, for correction and instruction in righteousness (2 Tim. 3:16-17). It will completely furnish us unto every good work, and if faithfully followed will win for us a home in heaven. It might not always agree with our wishes in its demands, but we should be pleased to correct our lives in conformity to its holy precepts."

Small fry love toasted bread cubes in a cream soup, under a poached egg or as a base for creamed vegetables, meat or fish. To prepare the cubes, cut soft bread into small squares. Arrange the cubes on a cookie sheet and place in a slow oven; turn the bread occasionally and toast until golden brown on all sides.

Don't over-cook your puffy omelets or they'll be tough and shrink!

'Thirsting' Topic Is Prepared For First EUB Church

In First Evangelical United Brethren church at 9:30 a. m. Sunday, "A Morning Prelude," an organ selection by Miss Lucille Kirkwood will introduce a worship theme, "Thirsting for God."

Of this theme, the Rev. Carl L. Wilson says: "This is the language of the Psalmist while wandering in the wilderness of Judah. It is an experience which is typical of those who have discovered their real need in the wilderness of this world's unsatisfactory pleasures and profits."

"Taken from a text in Psalm 63:1-8, six thoughts take preeminence. The nature of this thirst is of an aching spirit, and an impoverished life. Man is a soul; he is a spirit. There is a yawning gulf within his being, that all the material blessings of this world cannot fill. This soul thirst is an internal evidence of its kinship with God. The object of this thirst is for God 'A longing for Thee.' Only those who know God will trust Him."

"There are souls that are smitten with intense thirst, but they know not what they really need, so they run to the cisterns, that can hold no water. They will not acknowledge that it is God they need. O living, restless soul, it is the living, restful God you need. There is a cause for this thirsting. The land in which we live is in itself a dry, thirsty place—there is little water for the soul in it."

"There is absolutely nothing of the world that can meet the deep-seated soul-need of man. Ones best environments, apart from the enjoyment of the presence of God, is but a howling wilderness to the awakened; a clamorous emptiness, that only mocks the true hunger of the soul. This world offers the thirsty soul everything but the one thing needful and that is the presence of the Lord. The motive is a bold and large demand—To see Thy Power and Thy glory. There is only one satisfactory vision and that is to see the power and glory of God; to see the power of His saving grace and the glory of His matchless character."

"In the sanctuary of His Holy Word, this revelation is made clear: in the person of His Son, Jesus Christ, His power and glory can be seen. Where this thirst has been created, it is the forerunner of rich and lasting blessing to have the confidence of it. 'My soul shall be satisfied as with marrow and fatness.' God Himself seeks the portion of whosoever becomes Him. He makes them to drink of the river of His good pleasure; He leads them in the paths of righteousness and beside the still waters. He restores their souls. The closing thought is the guidance of it—'My soul followeth hard after Thee.'"

"When once the thirsty roots of a tree finds the river, they follow after it. So those who have found soul satisfaction in God abide by the 'Fountain of living water.' If man has found in Him full salvation, he will follow hard after Him in consecrated service. And in this service one finds the full meaning of 'Blessed are they that hunger and thirst after righteousness, for they shall be filled.'"

Other organ numbers by Miss Kirkwood will be "Kind Jesus" and "Marche Religioso." The congregation will sing hymns entitled "Love Divine, All Love Excelling" and "For He is So Precious To Me."

The church choir, under the direction of Montford Kirkwood Jr., will sing an anthem, "The Lord is My Light."

Church school classes will study a Bible lesson entitled "A Pattern of Christian Behavior." The school is graded with classes for all ages.

Children's department will meet in the service center for Christian education instruction and Bible study at 9:30 a. m. and at 10:30 a. m. for the junior church worship, when the lesson will be presented by visual aids.

Communion Rite Due Sunday In Calvary Church

"Holy Communion" will be observed Sunday during worship service in Calvary Evangelical United Brethren church. This is the fourth quarterly communion service of the year.

In preparation for the receiving of the communion, the Rev. James A. Herbst will lead the congregation upon the subject, "The Meaning of Holy Communion." In the opening part of the service, he will be assisted by Sunday School Superintendent Dale DeLong and Miss Minnie Wilkerson, pianist.

During the service, the children's department will come into the auditorium for a period of worship with the adults. They will then return to their own department for class sessions.

In the second part of the unified service, the adults will study a Sunday school lesson for the day in their various classes. The lesson theme for Sunday will be "Christian Behavior."

A Pattern of Christian Behavior

ILLUSTRATED SUNDAY SCHOOL LESSON

By Alfred J. Buescher

Scripture—Romans 6:1-14; 12.

"I beseech you, therefore, brethren, by the mercies of God, that ye present your bodies a living sacrifice, holy, acceptable to God, which is your reasonable service."

Be "not slothful in business; fervent in spirit; serving the Lord, rejoicing in hope; patient in tribulation, continuing instant in prayer; given to hospitality. Bless them that persecute you."

"Rejoice with them that do rejoice, and weep with them that weep. Be of the same mind one toward another. . . . Be not wise in your own conceit. Provide things honest in the sight of all men."

If thine enemy hunger, feed him; if he thirst, give him drink; for in so doing thou shalt heap coals of fire on his head."

SECURING AFRICA

IN THE EVENT OF WAR, it is conceded that the best NATO could do, as presently constituted, is to fight a delaying action. In due course, most of Europe would go by the boards. This is recognized by both Soviet and Western strategic planners. Africa would then become the Allies' main line of resistance.

While the Western powers, notably the U. S., are working feverishly to make Africa a formidable operational base, the Communists are working just as hard to undermine their efforts. The Reds are conspiring both with the Arab league to thwart the formation of a middle eastern defense alliance with Egypt as the hub, and with dissident native groups (such as the Mau Mau in British Kenya) to foment a state of unrest in the various colonies and protectorates.

Ethiopia is reported to be headquarters of Russian subversive activity throughout much of this area.

NATO nations have been aware of the situation for some time. Moreover, they recognize the futility of their cause should Africa be denied them as a base from which to strike back against any initial Soviet thrust. However from Cairo westward across the top of Africa to Casablanca, wax the hot flames of nationalism. These Britain and France must assuage before Africa can be made secure against the worst possible eventuality.

WHAT IS THE ANSWER?

ONE OF THE LATEST members of the armed forces to be tried and convicted as a traitor to his country is a young chap from New York. As a sergeant in the Air Force, he entered into a conspiracy to pass secrets of the Sabrejet fighter to the Communists.

His conviction brought a sentence of 20 years at hard labor. There have been others in this and previous wars who have betrayed their country and have met the same fate.

Here is a human characteristic which baffles understanding. Spies and saboteurs from the outside are to be expected, but why an American citizen who has been given a part in his country's defense should attempt to betray it can be explained only on the ground of twisted thinking.

The story of Benedict Arnold should serve as a warning to all who contemplate treason. Arnold was a brave soldier who had fought long and valiantly for independence from the British. Angered by what he considered his country's ingratitude, he sold out to the British and escaped to that country, where he was scorned and died in poverty and disgrace.

George E. Sokolsky's

These Days

The main purpose of an intelligence organization of any country is to gather, evaluate and utilize information on the intent of friend and foe alike. Intent is a matter of evaluation and may involve a certain amount of estimating, assuming, and even crystal gazing. A competent intelligence organization does not rule out any possibility; it tries not to be caught short and then have to alibi its failure to forecast the conduct of other nations. It exists to do forecasting and its officials are paid to do precisely that.

The public and even the press know very little about the intelligence activities of our country. They are necessarily secretive and should remain so. It used to be that the Army, Navy, and State Departments functioned independently, gathering their own data and making their own estimates. When this system was in vogue, each department sent copies of data to the others; but each made its own evaluations.

In World War II, the OSS came into existence as a super-espionage organization to specialize in difficult operations. It was over-advised and glamorized which is never necessary for espionage. That spy is best who is least known or noticed. A hidden organization can become over through a minor indiscretion, thus imperiling the lives of agents. For instance, the single defection of Guzenko in Canada led to the exposure of the whole of Soviet Russia's espionage apparatus in the Western world.

Finally, the Central Intelligence Agency was organized to meet all the needs of the country for intelligence and espionage. The CIA is a large, independent arm of government with a huge budget. If its judgments and evaluations are correct, it can be of the greatest value and whatever is spent on it is justified. If its estimates are wrong and the agencies of government, from the President down, operate on incorrectly evaluated data, then the danger to the country can be enormous.

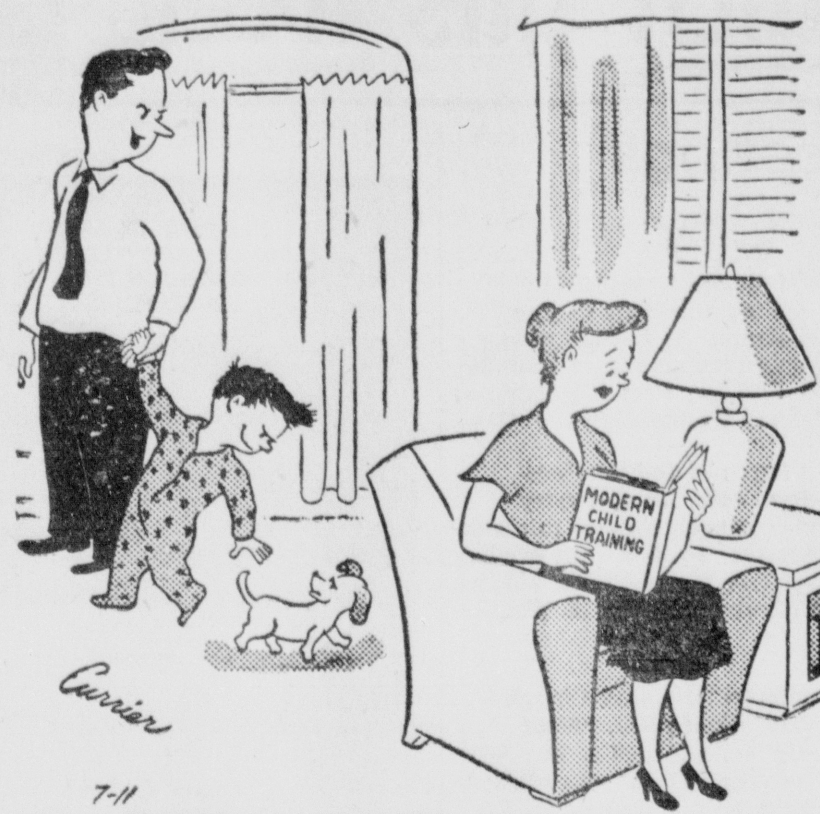

Therefore the CIA, which gathers, eliminates and evaluates both strategic and tactical data, is a tremendously important agency of government. At present, the CIA is managed by Allen Dulles, brother of the Secretary of State. His predecessor was General Walter Bedell Smith, now Under Secretary of State and one of the closest advisers to General Eisenhower.

It is quite clear from all available data that the intent of the Germans to attack in what came to be known as the Battle of the Bulge could have and should have been known. American intelligence was inadequate, particularly as to the intent of the Germans. There are many explanations of why we failed to know the German intent, but none of them is even plausible.

To cite two more instances: it should have been known, in the early stages of the Korean War, that Chinese troops were marching from Canton to Manchuria to come to the relief of the North Koreans who had been defeated by General MacArthur. A controversy developed as to whether General Charles A. Willoughby, MacArthur's intelligence officer, or the CIA was badly informed. Willoughby blames the CIA and the CIA blames Willoughby. The fact is that an intention of the Chinese Communists, many months in the making and actually in process, was not known to our command until the Chinese struck at us.

Gall Bladder Symptoms Aren't Always Relieved By Surgery

By HERMAN N. BUNDESEN, M.D.

AN often repeated complaint of some persons having surgery done on their gall bladder, is that their symptoms do not disappear after the operation, or that they have a recurrence of their symptoms shortly after the operation has been performed.

These people undergo surgery on their gall bladder with the hope of eliminating the pain in the right upper side, the jaundice or yellow coloring of the skin, the discomfort after eating certain foods, only to find that the operation has not successfully cured their discomforts. It has been estimated that this occurs in about twenty-five per cent of the persons who have their gall bladder removed.

Stones Lodge in Duct

There are many reasons why this may occur. Many times small stones pass through the gall bladder and become lodged in the duct leading from the gall bladder and liver to the intestines. This duct is known as the common bile duct, and stones that are not removed from this duct at the time that the gall bladder is removed may cause the persistent symptoms of gall bladder disease.

Usually, persons who have stones in this duct have a history of jaundice and have had severe cases of gall bladder colic. As many as ten to fifteen per cent of the persons having gallstones also have common bile duct stones. This can be remedied by cleaning out this duct at the time of surgery.

Incomplete Removal

Many times the gall bladder is not completely removed at the time of surgery, and even the smallest remnant which may be left in the abdomen can produce the symptoms that were present before surgery was performed.

Adhesions, of course, may form with any operation and also may be the cause for discomfort following a gall bladder operation. However, in most instances, it is best not to operate again to remove them, because they only reform as often as they are cut. Many diseases of the liver and smaller bile duct can resemble gall bladder disease. However, when definite gall bladder disease is present, the best treatment is usually the surgical removal of the diseased gall bladder in its entirety.

QUESTION AND ANSWER

T. P.: Is there any way that the growth defect from polio can be corrected, especially when one leg is shorter than the other?

Answer: In adolescence and childhood, an operation is now available in which, in the normal extremity, a nail is put through the growth center of the bone in order to slow the growth so that the growth of both legs can be equalized.

CHAPTER EIGHTEEN

IN MANNING a sense of defeat took hold. Torgin's continued willingness to have Slash 7 searched indicated that the house held no secret. Yet Purdy had vanished from that coulee dugout, and the sign said that Purdy had been carried away by a horseman. By some honest rancher who'd since lodged Purdy in the Mannington jail? What a laughing stock Flint Manning's son would be if he continued pushing a search for a man who was already behind bars!

Maybe Laura was already on her way to Mannington for help. This thought rankled in him. Flint Manning hadn't needed any posse to back him; even on the Marias, shed of a badge, he'd chosen to go after Texas Joe Bridger alone.

"Where does that door lead?" Manning asked, indicating one in the parlor wall.

"A closet," Torgin moved to the fireplace woodpile and dug from it a whisky bottle. He turned and said in his deep voice, "Sit down and have a drink. You're like a dog chasing his tail, kid. You'll never catch up with it. Sit down, I say. Care to hear the graphophone?"

I've got a bunch of those Uncle Josh records. Funniest things you ever heard. You might as well make the rest of your stay a friendly call." But the voice wasn't friendly.

Manning shook his head. "There's still Gal."

"He took off this morning on a pacer of his own. Matter of fact, he's been hunting you. Doesn't like anyone named Manning. He finally told me so." He held up the whisky bottle and swished its contents. "How about a drink?"

"Have one yourself," Manning said.

In the next ten minutes he put his nose into every ground floor room, sensing the filthy kitchen and the cubbyhole where Torgin slept and another bedroom that probably hadn't been used for months. Manning could have traced his name in the dust of the window sill.

Returning, Manning asked, "Got a cellar in this place?"

Torgin shook his head. "The root cellar was dug before the house went up. It made cellar enough."

"How do I get upstairs?"

Torgin's face tightened, and his eyes shone pale. "The upstairs was closed off four winters back. No sense in heating it, and no need to open it since. Man, haven't you caught on yet that nobody's hid here?"

"Just the same, I'll have a look," Torgin growled. "Now that's a fool notion."

The supper bell sounded, clear and mellow and almost in the room. Torgin stood up from the chair, still holding the bottle. "You might as well eat, long as you're here. Let's go and put our feet under the table."

There it was again, the friendly offer without the friendly voice, and now Manning understood. Plain as hoofprints in the dust. Torgin had been willing enough to let him look everywhere, not balking until upstairs had been mentioned. Torgin had been bluffing and hadn't been too bright about it at that, showing ease the longer they kept away from the house, even reminding Manning of the root cellar, but getting edgy at the last. And all this while, Torgin had been buying time. Time for Gal to come riding back to Slash 7. Time for Gal to get here and face up to a Manning.

No wonder Torgin had jumped so fast when that last rider had ridden out; only the rider had turned out to be someone named Charley. And there were other signs that pointed to the truth. Torgin had chosen a straight-backed chair in preference to the rockers here in the parlor and walked the width of the room to get back to that particular chair. The chair by the door.

Manning darted quickly to that door and wrenched it open and saw a stairs before him.

Torgin exploded then, and Manning had a quick remembrance of thinking now one poke with a stick could start a grizzly rampaging. Torgin came off the chair, swinging the whisky bottle at Manning's head. Manning pulled his head aside and lunged at Torgin. He could almost see the shout that was rising in Torgin's throat, and he wondered if it would carry to the cook-shack where the crew was now assembling. He couldn't risk that.

He struck out with his left fist and caught Torgin in the midriff. Fat there, all right—too much fat. Torgin's breath went out of him; he stumbled and went down on one knee, but he let go of the whisky bottle and wrapped his arms around Manning's legs and brought Manning down, too. Manning writhed free and got to a stand and started for the stairs.

Only dimly did he hear the front door bang open. That far corner was in shadow with the horn of the graphophone glimmering faintly, but he got a hazy glimpse of two figures. "Hold it!" someone cried, and he knew that voice to be Gal's. But it was Laura Brownlee who was screaming, "Cole! Watch out!"

Now Manning saw Gal move into the room, into the light, a gun in his right hand, the fingers of his left closed around Laura's wrist. Gal's eyes found Manning and impaled him. Torgin, on the floor, let out a throaty roar that held triumph. Manning thought of his gun and fought down a heady impulse to try for it. There was just enough coolness left in him to know that Laura would be standing in the way of the shooting.

The two men stood glaring at each other when Gal stepped sideways into the room, pulling Laura along; he flung her into one of the rawhide-bottomed rockers, not being mean about it, saying absently, "Behave yourself, girl," as though he really didn't know she was on earth. He still had his eyes fixed on Manning; his eyes were a cold blue haze, and in Manning rose the realization that this was the most dangerous moment he'd known in the Bootjack.

Torgin said, "How did you come by her?" jerking his head toward Laura.

"I was riding back from the basin," Gal said tonelessly, his eyes never leaving Manning. "She was hanging around up on the rim. Yesterday I let her get away. This time I brought her in."

Now Torgin was a worried man in the twilight. His broad face showed this, but he bent his head; he'd had time to begin to think, and the tone he used on Gal was almost pleading. "We're on thin ice, you and me," he said. "Unless Purdy names the man I think he will, we're jailbait for fair. Don't you understand? We've got to make Purdy talk before we can do a thing. No two ways about it. I'd have got the truth out of him last night if you hadn't balked at the rough stuff. Remember that, Gal."

"I fetched him here because you wanted him," Gal said. "That didn't mean I was willing to stand by and see fire put to an old man's feet. But that's got nothing to do with what we're talking about."

"It's got everything to do with it," Torgin insisted. "It's all tied together, Gal. You bought into me when you came here; I bought into yours when I let you stay, knowing"—he shot a cautious glance at Manning—"what I did about your backtrail. If Purdy tells me the right name, I can ride high and handsome in this basin. But right now I'm in a split stick, and you want to wedge me tighter. That's what it adds up to. If you start gunplay in this room probably both of us will look up a rope in a gallows yard. I didn't bargain for that when I took you in, Gal."

The fire burned less brightly in Gal's eyes. "I didn't think about it that way," he said. "What do you want to do?"

Torgin drew his heavy brows together. "What do I want to do? I say let's wrap these two up and put them somewhere till we make Purdy talk. That's it, we'll put 'em away."

"Upstairs?" Gal asked, nodding toward the door Manning had wrenched open.

Torgin shook his head. "Let Purdy see friends around and he might get braver. No, the root cellar, I think." He lifted his gun from the leather and wagged it in a wide arc that swept from Manning to Laura and back again. "Come on, you two," he said. "We're going for a walk. Gal, there's a lantern in the kitchen. Fetch it along."

Manning said, "Think twice, Mack. Have you forgot about my badge? You've showed yourself leery of the law. Are you leery enough?"

Torgin's eyes turned scared, but he made his voice bold. "Another night may make a heap of difference."

NATIONAL WHIRLIGIG

Editor's Note: Every Saturday this veteran Washington newspaper correspondent devotes his column to answering readers' questions of general interest on national and international policies and personalities. Questions may be sent direct to Ray Tucker at 6308 Hillcrest Place, Chevy Chase, Md.

WASHINGTON, July 11—"Is Churchill really sick, or has he suffered a breakdown that may force his retirement fairly soon?" inquires S.B. of Springfield, Mass.

Answer: Obviously, Washington has no authentic information on whether the grand old man has collapsed from age and extraordinary demands on mind and body. It would be indelicate for such an old friend as President Eisenhower to ask that question, even though the answer would be of tremendous importance to us and the world, politically, diplomatically, militarily. There is a feeling, and a fear, that the prime minister is nearing the close of his career. He is the same age as Syngman

Rhee, 78. Since he covered the Boer war as a newspaper correspondent, he has led a more active life than his World War II colleagues and contemporaries, including the late Joseph Stalin. Nor has he ever spared himself in working, eating and drinking.

DECLINE SEEN—He certainly has not acted like the old Churchill in recent days. Both Ike and Dulles have not been able to obtain definite plans—an agenda—for the now postponed Bermuda conference. He was vague and uncertain, and that is not like him. His characterization of Rhee's freeing of Korean prisoners as "treachery" in a formal communique address was out of character.

In view of his prophetic denunciation of Hitler and Munich, his insistence on a face-to-face talk with the Kremlin is most peculiar. It bewilders the White House, which will continue to resist the idea. Such softness at a time of internal crisis within Russia itself does not befit the Churchill of "England's finest hour."

PROMISE—"Will not the do-nothing record of this Republican Congress have a bad effect on both President Eisenhower and the GOP?" asks H.F. of Auburn, N.Y. "Unless both House and Senate quit their dawdling and debating, they will not carry out many of their campaign promises."

Answer: It is true that Congress will probably quit without having acted on many major pieces of legislation. But they will have another six or seven months next year in which to fulfill their pledges. They will be judged in 1954 campaign by the achievements of both sessions, not merely the one now drawing to adjournment late this month or early in August.

It is true that Congress may quit without doing anything on modifying the Taft-Hartley Act, extending the Social Security program, lowering taxes and revising the taxation system, which were among the "musts" demanded by Eisenhower in the 1952 campaign.

SOLVED SLOWLY—But these are major and difficult problems, which should not be disposed of quickly and carelessly. They require careful study if they are to be solved correctly. The nation will not suffer too seriously by a six or eight months' delay.

In fact, there are times when a minimum of legislation is desirable. There has been too much hasty and careless law-making in the last two decades.

Finally, enactment of essential appropriation and foreign aid bills in a time of transition from spending to saving is a greater accomplishment than is generally realized.

RED TRIBUTE—"Is it true," asks D.F. of Charleston, S.C., "that a Russian warship visited England during the coronation ceremonies?"

Answer: Yes. The Smerdlov was among the array of ships which Queen Elizabeth reviewed at Spithead. And British newspapers report that the loudest cheers for Her Majesty, as her yacht rode down the line, came from the crew of the Red vessel. It seemed to thrill the British correspondents and editors.

Pickaway Country Club Scene Of DuPont Dance

Mrs. Avis Is General Chairman

More than 200 persons were present at a "get-acquainted" dance held Friday evening in the Pickaway Country Club sponsored by the supervisory and clerical employees of the DuPont Co.

Guests went to the home of the honored guest following luncheon and games were played. Prizes were awarded to Louise Adkins and Lynn Reichelderfer.

Other guests were Emily and Billy Weldon, Jane and Mary Mader, Sally and Cathy Griner, Lynn and Susie Reichelderfer, Hester Weldon, Brenda Mary Johnson, Nancy Lou Yates, Louise Adkins, Barbara Jones, Betsy Earnhart, Jay Barnhill, Douglas Roth, Brad Schneider, Dicky Patrick, Lynne Hughes, Carole Bahr, David Young, Nancy Heffner, Miss Evelyn Gattrell, Mrs. Richard Simpkins and Mrs. R. E. Bailey.

Ashville Group Makes Plans

Willing Workers Class members of Ashville Lutheran church met Wednesday evening in the social room of the church with Mrs. Harry Trego presiding.

Mrs. Effie Higley explained the topic dealing with service through co-operation with the National Lutheran Council. Mrs. Werner Stuck presented the Bible study.

A supper and bazaar is scheduled for September. Members were asked to co-operate more fully with the junior mission band, which the club sponsors.

A reading and a recitation on "Ohio" were given by Mrs. Higley and Miss Karen Sue Dum.

Hostesses for the evening were Mrs. Frank Hudson, Mrs. Stuck, Mrs. Higley, Mrs. William Plum and Mrs. Jesse Bastian.

Iced Tea and Fruit Ambrosia— Ideal Summer Refreshment

HOT summer days call for refreshment that looks cool, feels cool, tastes cool and is cool. And what combination could be better than thoroughly chilled succulent fruit served on a chilled platter. For added variety in texture and flavor, try dipping the chilled fruit in honey—then in crisp white shredded coconut. To go with the fruit platter—whether you serve it as company refreshment or dessert, add a promise of a tingling cold thirst chaser such as refreshing iced tea. Iced tea looks and tastes better when poured from a glass pitcher into tall glasses that are frosty cold, and it fulfills a thirsty man's anticipation of heat relief. To make iced tea that comes out right every time, with that hefty cool tea flavor that really quenches the thirst and gives you a lift, try this new Open-Saucepan-Iced-Tea Method. Bring 1 quart of fresh water to a full rolling boil in an open saucepan. Remove from heat. Immediately add 6 tablespoons tea. Brew 3-5 minutes. Stir. Strain into a pitcher holding 1 quart of cold water. Do not refrigerate. Keep at room temperature handy to serve any time of day. To serve, put 2-3 ice cubes in a tall glass. Fill with tea. Add sugar and lemon to taste. Since the hot weather season is iced-tea-time, here are a few pointers to remember. Refrigeration is apt to cause iced tea to cloud. Clouding, however, has absolutely no effect on the flavor or quality of tea—rather it is an indication of a superior tea. If you want to bring back its original amber clear color, just add enough boiling water to restore its crystal clearness. Another point to keep in mind to make good tea every time, is that measurements and brewing time must be just as accurate as when you bake a cake.

Driver Injured In Pileup Of Sulkies On Hilliards Oval

COLUMBUS, O. (AP)—Driver Stan Applegate received head injuries and cuts in a two-sulky collision at Hilliards Raceway Friday night.

Applegate was thrown from his sulky when his horse, Red Diamond, crashed into the sulky of Three Star Miss, who had fallen on the track in the eighth race.

Peddigo, Thimmes Demolish Racers In Washington

Bill Peddigo of Columbus, who raced off with honors Wednesday in auto racing in Pickaway County Fairgrounds, was knocked out of the running in the first race Friday night in Washington C. H.

Peddigo whipped around the Washington oval in 17.82 seconds during the time trials, fastest time of the evening, but his racer was demolished in the first heat when it smashed into the protection fence.

Circleville's Gene Thimmes also banged up his car in the restart for the first race, after tangling with Jack Bowsher of Springfield.

Don McFarland of Circleville was the only local driver to collect honors during the evening, coping the win in the fourth heat.

LIST OF winners in Friday's racing program follows:

First heat — Bob Sweet of Springfield; Dick Chronaberry of Tipp City; Hewitt of Troy.

Second heat — Butler of Springfield; Dock Holder of Frankfort; Jim Woodruff of Springfield.

Third heat — Jack Murphy of South Vienna; Bill Glick of Columbus; Beryl Smith of Washington.

Fourth heat — Don McFarland of Circleville; Bill Maloy of Xenia; Wayne Strickle of Xenia.

First consolation — Flip Davis of Xenia; Speedy Baldwin of Columbus; Gene Powers of Springfield.

Second consolation — Tom Webb of Washington; Jack Bowsher of Springfield; Rockfield of Troy.

Feature — Bowsher, Rockfield, Butler, Sweet, Webb, Holder and Glick.

Detroit Picks Up Branca From Bums For Waiver Price

DETROIT (AP)—The Detroit Tigers Friday acquired veteran pitcher Ralph Branca from the Brooklyn Dodgers via the waiver route.

The 27-year-old right hander will join the Tigers here Saturday.

Branca, a 6-foot three-inch 200 pounder, has appeared in seven games for the Dodgers this year. He has not been credited with a win or loss.

Branca remains a mystery. Back in 1947, when he was 21 and fresh out of New York University, he won 21 ball games in the National League. He won 14 the next year, then 13, down to seven and back to 13 in 1951. Then it happened.

Brooklyn and New York finished in a tie for first place. Each had won a playoff game. Don Newcombe, struggling with every pitch, coddled a 4-1 lead into the ninth inning of the third and final game at the Polo Grounds.

Newcombe had lost one run of his lead and there were men on second and third with one out when Manager Chuck Dressen, calling his bullpen by telephone, got the word, "Branca is ready."

Branca threw one pitch to Bobby Thomson, a called strike. The next pitch into the left field stands for a home run that left its mark on Branca as surely as Fred Merkle's failure to touch second base in another game in the same park left its stamp on him.

There was an unforgettable picture in the papers the next day of Branca, slumped in utter despair.

Jacoby Resigns At Washington

WASHINGTON, C. H. — Coach Fred Jacoby, who brought Washington C. H. High School one of its finest football seasons last year, has resigned.

Local school officials were informed by telegram Friday — the deadline for teacher resignations — that Jacoby has accepted a position as coach with a Madison, Wis., high school. He has been in that city studying for a master's degree at the University of Wisconsin.

Jacoby's team won nine games last season, chalking up 57 points against all opponents' total of 32. It was his first season here, having transferred from Bremen. He is a native of Logan.

One of the shortest boxing bouts on record occurred on May 12, 1940, when Willard Dean knocked out Claude Allen in 11 seconds at Corpus Christi, Tex.

The average score of 55 football games played since 1947 by Michigan State teams under coach Biggie Munn is 30-11 in favor of the Spartans.

Three-Day Deer Season Booked

COLUMBUS (AP)—The state wildlife division said today Ohio will have a three-day deer season this year from Dec. 17-19, but the division has not yet decided which counties will be open.

It set the squirrel season from Sept. 15-Oct. 15 with the bag and possession limit four.

Bags, and possession limit and season end on rabbit, pheasant, grouse and partridge will not be established until after the August game survey. Opening date on those and the fur-bearing animals is Nov. 16.

Sokolsky's These Days

Similarly, President Syngman Rhee publicly stated his intention to adopt an independent attitude toward anti-Communist prisoners of war unless the Republic of Korea got a square deal out of the so-called truce.

This statement of intent on the part of the Republic of Korea was evaluated incorrectly as a bluff. It turned out to be startlingly real.

Evaluation is difficult, requiring not only enormous fundamental knowledge but keen judgment. It would be stupid to assume that evaluation will always be correct and that any human being possesses godlike wisdom.

Nevertheless, when the stakes are so high, too many errors of judgment cannot be lightly accepted as average human error. That can be too costly.

An intelligence organization must be sensitive to the intent of every other country. It should have, for instance, anticipated the development of neutralism. However, no intelligence organization can or should be responsible for overt acts to correct discovered intentions.

Espionage discovers; other agencies act on the discoveries. Otherwise, the intelligence organization becomes another State Department and defies the reason for its existence.

Pilots Play 'Hide and Seek' With Guided Missiles

Men Failed Only Once To Recover Rocket

Average Search Flight Continues About Two Hours

An Army unit attached to Holloman Air Development Center near Alamogordo, N. M., has one of the atomic age's strangest tasks—playing hide-and-seek with rockets and guided missiles.

The seven officers and 33 enlisted men of Detachment Three, 9393rd Technical Service Unit, track down and recover remnants of rockets and guided missiles test-fired at Holloman or at Army Ordnance's White Sands Proving Ground.

With five single-engine L-19A airplanes and a ground fleet of jeeps and weapons carriers, these soldiers play tag with man-made meteors over the 4,000-square-mile Army-Air Force desert range.

Aloft in spotter-aircraft, pilots of the unit often can follow the path of a missile when it is fired, thus directing the ground crew to the landing point.

NINETY PER cent of the air missions are flown at an altitude below 500 feet, the better to keep an eye on the speeding quarry. The average search flight lasts about two hours.

On the easy missions, a puff of smoke pin-points the landing spot and the missiles are found easily. But sometimes the hunting can be hard and prolonged work.

It took 28 hours of desert scouting to find the remains of one rocket, which had parachuted into a canyon. Planes had to fly low between the canyon walls, and the updrafts of air usually found in canyons considerably complicated the search.

When a pilot spots a missile, he directs the ground team to the site by signals and message drops.

A dropped smoke grenade can be used to mark the location of the missile, and often the pilot shows the way by wagging his wings, circling and then spurring in the right direction to keep the ground crew on the track.

More complicated instructions are dropped in weighted message bags attached to long, colorful streamers.

DETACHMENT Three arrived at Holloman in October, 1952, and despite the great area of the desert range, only once have the men failed to bring back the missile they set out to find.

Besides their work at shadowing missiles after they are fired, the men have the job of scouting the firing area before a shot to make sure nobody has strayed into the path of the weapons.

ALBUQUERQUE, N. M. (AP)—According to one of the nation's top atomic scientists, Russia may now have up to 500 atomic bombs.

"But," added Dr. Alvin C. Graves, "Russia still trails the U. S. both in quantity and quality of atomic weapons. That, I believe is the only reason we are not now involved in a major war."

Graves is director of scientific tests for the Atomic Energy Commission. His remarks were made in an interview here.

Look Out, Men; Sweater Hat Is Latest In Millinery Field

By DOROTHY ROE
Associated Press Women's Editor

NEW YORK (AP)—The answer to the current headaches of the millinery industry may be the "sweater hat," introduced during this week's rash of custom fall hats shown by John Fredericks, once known as the "Mad Hatter."

The "sweater hat" might well become the national fad that the millinery industry is praying for—a fad of such proportions as the "Empress Eugenie" hat of the 1930's, which overnight made previous hat styles obsolete.

It's simple enough to be copied in the hat-bar price range, cute enough to be flattering to all types, sure to appeal to the legion of U. S. sweater girls.

With slight variations in shape, the "sweater hat" is a beanie or pillbox of velours with a ribbed-knit sweater cuff in matching color. It looks casual enough to wear with sports clothes, dressy enough to wear with town clothes or fur coats, novel enough to attract hatless customers.

Industry representatives present at the John Fredericks showing brightened up noticeably as the parade of hats progressed, and toward the end were looking positively cheerful.

Many had attended earlier in the week the fall clinic of the Millinery Merchandising Executives' Association, at which various suggestions were made for stimulating lagging sales throughout the country. But the principal complaint was:

"We need a completely new design—not just something that sold well last year."

Clearly the executives felt that women would have to be jolted into a hat-buying mood by something sensational.

John Fredericks, who usually can be counted on for sensations, reversed himself this season with the announcement that he was presenting a collection that is "fun but not giddy."

Judging from the prolonged applause of the audience, composed of press, buyers, and industry executives, he answered the cry for something new.

August Call Set At 4 Men Here

Pickaway County is to supply four men to the armed forces next month as part of Ohio's August quota of 1,298 men. Called will be men born before Oct. 1, 1933.

The August call, part of the national draft quota of 23,000 men, is the second lowest since June, 1951, when only 558 Ohioans were called into service. Last August's call was for 1,446.

August quotas for Fayette, Clinton and Hocking Counties have been set at 3 men each.

What Would Dogs Have Thought?

CLEVELAND —It was an ordinary day at the Cleveland Animal Protective League office. Then the phone rang.

"I want to borrow a dog for a couple of days," shrieked an excited female voice.

"Why?" asked the league director, Henry J. Leffingwell.

"I've got fleas," said the voice. "I thought one of your dogs could roam around the house a couple of days and pick them up."

Chemicals Play Major Role On Farm

New Dopes Adding $1 Billion Yearly To Rural Incomes

NEW YORK (AP)—The newest thing down on the farm is the spectacular job being done by chemicals for agriculture.

These chemicals are estimated to be adding about one billion dollars a year to farm income just by maintaining the fertility of the land and controlling insects.

The farmers seem to be convinced. Last year, they bought more than 1½ billion dollars worth of chemicals. That included 23 million tons of fertilizers, 250 million pounds of insect killers, 50 million pounds of weed killers, and a growing volume of seed disinfectants, growth stimulants, soil conditioning chemicals and fungicides, wood preservatives and animal medicines.

The Manufacturing Chemists' Association figures that fertilizer alone increased national harvests by 20 per cent, and says the farmer is reinvesting six cents out of every crop dollar to keep up the fertility of his land. For every 10 cents spent on pesticides, says the association, one dollar is returned.

Some 40 potent chemicals coming out of industry's laboratories since the end of World War II have helped the farmer against the insect horde that chews up several billion dollars worth of food in the field every year. New weed-killers have cleared many thousands of overgrown acres.

Your steaks, pork chops and chickens are more reasonably priced because of the job chemical products are doing in disease prevention and better feeding of livestock and poultry.

The Battelle Memorial Institute of Columbus, Ohio, a research organization, underlines the long-range importance of chemicals in agriculture. Battelle Director Clyde Williams declares:

"The nation's population is increasing annually at the rate of two million persons. At the same time, usable acreage and the farm labor force are decreasing. A pressing need exists for improving the quantity and quality of our agricultural output from presently worked units of land. Perhaps the greatest single opportunity for

Three Local Men Now In Training

Three Pickaway County men have arrived at the 2053rd Army Reception Center at Fort Meade, Md., where they will receive their initial indoctrination into the Army.

They are Pvt. James R. Blankenship, 20, of 384 E. Mound St.; Pvt. David E. Goode, 20, son of Mr. and Mrs. William Goode of Circleville Route 4; and Pvt. Robert E. Chester, 22, son of Mr. and Mrs. Robert S. Chester of Williamsport Route 2.

They will receive uniforms, be classified as to skills and aptitudes and will be selected for that branch of the Army for which they are best qualified. They will then be sent to an Army installation for basic training in that branch of the Army for which they are selected. After basic training they will receive advanced training at installations of the Army Technical Services or schools; or they may be assigned to the Army Field Forces.

U.S. Communists Silent On Beria

NEW YORK (AP)—American Communists are not saying anything, just yet, about the downfall of Lavrenty P. Beria.

The Daily Worker, party organ, was the only English-language newspaper not to mention Beria's arrest. It was reported that both Friday's Daily Worker edition and this weekend's Sunday Worker had gone to press before the Moscow announcement. A Worker spokesman said some editorial comment on the developments could be expected Monday.

Airbase Building Allocation OK'd

WASHINGTON (AP)—The House Appropriations Committee today recommended $68,289,000 for airbase construction within the United States during the year which started July 1. It stipulated the money must come from unspent balances on hand. No new money was proposed.

The amounts allocated to installations included: Gentile Air Force Depot, Dayton, $3,078,000; Wright-Patterson Air Force Base, $2,560,000; Lockbourne Air Force Base, $1,104,000.

meeting this need is through an intensification of 'Chemical Agriculture.' "

Council Studies Loss Of Berries

YARMOUTH, Nova Scotia (AP)—Mrs. Emory Porter claims the Yarmouth town council owes her $30 because she didn't have any strawberries this year.

In presenting the bill, Mrs. Porter told council she had a fine crop of berries until the town sprayed chestnut trees near her home. Some of the spray hit her strawberry patch, ruining the fruit.

The council agreed to hand the bill over to the town's legal authority for investigation.

Peek At Relief Rolls Given OK

COLUMBUS (AP)—The Ohio Legislature says you can take a look at public assistance rolls of your county if you have a reason, any reason.

That was the gist of a compromise agreed upon Thursday on an Ohio Senate bill sponsored by Sen. Ross Pepple (R-Allen).

It will be up to Gov. Frank J. Lausche to let the legislative act become law or veto it. Democrats in the Legislature generally have opposed it.

119 Descendants

CAMBRIDGE (AP)—Mrs. Rebecca Jane Robinson of nearby Saratov died Thursday night at 97, leaving 119 descendants: 13 children, 32 grandchildren, 28 great grandchildren and six great great grandchildren.
